Kingston Now Owns Its High School; Final Sum Paid on Friday Evening

$10,000 Final Payment and $212.50 Interest Audited Last Night for Building Erected About 1915—Original Building.

TEACHERS RETIRED

All Teachers and School Employes Get Contracts for Another Year—Hutton at First Meeting.

Payment of the last bonded indebtedness of the Kingston Board of Education was made this month when the last $10,000 payment was made and it was announced at the monthly meeting of the board Friday evening that this concluded the payment of the original high school building which was erected about 1915. The final bond payment was audited at the meeting Friday evening and amounted to $10,000 principal sum and $212.50 interest.

Attending his first meeting since his appointment to the board to succeed the late D. N. Mathews was G. V. D. Hutton, who was appointed to the board to fill out the unexpired term. The appointment of Mr. Hutton was read and President Beeres welcomed the new member.

Among the communications which were received was a request from the staff of Dame Rumor, the high school publication, requesting use of the gym and auditorium for the evening of May 8 for a minstrel show and dance. Granted.

The Youth Council was granted use of the grounds at the rear of the high school for an Easter Dawn service at 7 a. m. on April 12. In case of bad weather the auditorium will be used.

The March payroll, amounting to $36,735.49 was audited as were bills amounting to $15,276.66, of this amount was the final payment of bonds amounting to $10,212.50.

Authority to the supplies committee was granted to purchase supplies for the part time school from the federal fund recently received. Authority was also given the committee to solicit bids for general supplies and library books for the ensuing year. Coal and fuel oil bids were also authorized.

A report of the teachers committee was received and adopted. The report stated that teachers and other school employes were to be re-employed for another year from July 1, 1936, at the same salary as now except that the annual increment, as provided by law, be added to such salaries as had not reached the maximum. The teachers committee was authorized to arrange for summer school at the high school, if any is to be held this summer, and to hire teachers with preference being given to teachers now employed in the high school.

The usual contract will be tendered teachers in the city schools for next year, such contracts to be signed and returned on or before April 20, to the superintendent of schools. This is the date of the resumption of schools after the spring vacation. Authority was given the teachers' committee to fill vacancies and to hire additional teachers needed, such action to be confirmed by the board.

President Beeres announced the appointment of Mr. Hutton to the teachers' committee.

Superintendent Van Ingen submitted the following report and the board then adjourned:

To the Board of Education:

By law the night school must be in session at least fifty nights. Our night school was opened in October and closed March 2 with fifty sessions. The attendance was fair. After the Christmas holiday vacation the attendance dropped decidedly as compared with the pre-holiday attendance. Naturally this suggests the advisability of opening the night school earlier in October, thus having more sessions before the Christmas break. The departments having the largest and most regular attendance were commercial, homemaking and the general engineering course.

The part time or continuation school registers approximately 115 pupils. These are the employed boys and girls fifteen and sixteen years of age.

In the fall of 1936, the new law goes into effect. The full time school age is then extended to sixteen years instead of fourteen as at present. Hence the boys and girls over 16 and under 17 years of age are the only employed minors who must attend continuation school. This will naturally tend to hold for a longer period some additional pupils in the upper grades and high school. It will also reduce the number required to attend Continuation School. The opinion is prevalent that industry will not generally find employment for young people under eighteen years of age since many adults and heads of families are in need of employment. This may bring into the schools some young people between seventeen and eighteen years of age who cannot secure employment.

The object of continuation school is to bridge the gap between the full day school and the outside world. It does this mainly through guidance; that is, each pupil is helped to choose the vocation for which he is best fitted, and given information in regard to different occupations and helped individually with his problems. Contact is maintained with his employer. He is directed to develop habits of thrift, proper use of leisure, citizenship, health, etc.

Again this year we have carried on with a group of boys and girls from the grade schools for one half day each week in shop and homemaking with the continuation school equipment and faculty. These young people, about eighty-five, have responded well to this educational opportunity and the interest in this work has carried over for greater interest in the regular grade work. It would be a worth while project if this type of work could be extended to many others of the more mature pupils.

Respectfully submitted,
R. V. VAN INGEN,
Superintendent of Schools.

Hitler at Cologne Today For Election Appeal; French Put Ban on Planes Over Frontier

Der Feuhrer and All His Cabinet Ministers Close Campaign With Bid for "Honor, Freedom and Peace"—Religious Aspect Taken On as Hitler Mounts Rostrum Tonight—None But French Military Planes Will Be Allowed Over Nation's Eastern Frontier.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)

Cologne, March 28 (AP)—With church bells tolling throughout the Reich, Adolf Hitler, surrounded by all his cabinet ministers, turned to Cologne today to close the Nazi election campaign with a spirited appeal for "honor, freedom and peace."

To make the climax of the campaign virtually as spectacular as the start—marked by the remilitarization of this Rhineland—Hitler's final demand for a "yes" in tomorrow's Reichstag election was given a religious aspect.

Every German, no matter whether he was at home, on the street or in a public place, was called on to interrupt whatever he was doing and sing "Lord, Make Us Free," just as Der Fuehrer mounted his Rhineland rostrum tonight to deliver his last dictum.

Enthusiasm ran high here in the Rhineland, to which Hitler sent his troops March 7, in defiance of the Locarno pact and Versailles treaty—the action which Der Fuehrer sought all Germany to approve by its vote in tomorrow's Reichstag election.

Loud Speakers for Nation.

A nationwide network of loud speakers was arranged to make Hitler's Cologne address echo into the most remote corners of the country.

Operas and theatres were closed. Nazi party formations rallied at meeting halls and public places. Torchlight processions tonight will signal the close of the campaign.

In the Rhineland, pillars were erected and flagpoles were virtually buried under tens of thousands of Swastika flags.

The nation's two great zeppelins, the old Graf and the new Von Hindenburg, joining in the final burst of propaganda, criss-cross over the country, showering down small flags on the cities.

Nazi party district leaders and government officials, who have declared, "the last German must be won to make the election returns 100 per cent."

Before coming from the great Krupp munitions works at Essen to deliver his final address in Cologne, Hitler conferred with Joachim Von Ribbenstrop, his ambassador-at-large, who returned yesterday from the London negotiations over the Rhineland crisis.

Von Ribbenstrop brought Der Fuehrer the latest information concerning the swift succession on London events which saw the League of Nations council condemn Germany's treaty breach, and the other Locarno powers advance proposals for a settlement.

Frontier Closed.

Paris, March 28 (AP)—A wide region of France's eastern frontier was closed by the air ministry today to all planes except military craft on official trips.

The ministry announced that as a result of "aerial indiscretions" by foreign planes, watching posts had been set up on all frontiers, "especially along the Maginot line," the fortifications facing Germany's remilitarized Rhineland.

A special air police force was created to pursue any foreign planes crossing the border illegally, as a warning that aerial spying on fortifications would not be tolerated.

Only authorized planes may cross any part of France's borders, the ministry ruled, and these must follow designated channels.

"It is regrettable that Germany is unwilling to follow the decisions of the international convention for insignia of airplanes, and indiscriminately uses the hooked cross on military and touring craft," the ministry's announcement said.

The aerial policing system was established to enable swift planes to pursue and photograph suspect craft and to obtain proof for diplomat protests.

An earlier French protest that two German planes flew low over frontier fortifications brought a reply from the Reich yesterday that an investigation disclosed the craft to be student planes, carrying no photographic equipment.

French officials said they were informed the German pilots were "severely punished" for violation of an order by Reich Air Minister Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, forbidding all planes except transport ships to approach the borders.

Red Cross Needs More Help from Ulster

In one of our uptown stores the other day, the following conversation between a manager and his assistant regarding the flood situation in nearby states was overheard. The two men were making their plans for "Dress-Up" evening. Suddenly the manager stopped his planning and said, "Gee, here we are all set and going, everything under control and comfortable. Wonder how we would feel to look up and see water coming into our store and flooding Wall street, and more and more water coming, maybe because the Ashokan dam had given way! And what would be more, we could do nothing about it but try to save our lives no matter what happened to the stock and store. Looks as though we didn't begin to appreciate our blessings. Have you sent any money to the Red Cross here?" The assistant had not, so both decided to stop at the Red Cross rooms on their way home and leave some money.

The latest news from Red Cross headquarters makes it very plain that a great many more of the people of Ulster county should think of the people who have no homes to go to; no clothes to wear; no work; not one thing of their past home life to turn to, and who are perhaps facing the still terrifying danger of disease.

A letter, dated March 26, from National Headquarters at Washington, says in part: "Reports from Red Cross area directors in the flooded districts, received as this is being written, place the total number of families now looking to us for immediate relief at 100,000, which is equivalent to 450,000 persons. This number has grown steadily every day. As the flood waters continue into new territory we may expect an even greater number."

"We now have more than 100 nurses caring for the sick and aiding with immunization programs in 10 refugee centers at Springfield, Mass. At Hartford, Conn., 21 nurses are assisting with wholesale typhoid inocculation. At almost every point in the disaster area the Red Cross with the aid of nurses and local health authorities is having to be on the alert to prevent possible epidemics."

"In the meantime, the problem of emergency relief continues to be a pressing one everywhere. In Johnstown, Pa., almost half of the population of the entire city were receiving food from the Red Cross. In Pittsburgh, we were continuing to feed 50,000 persons. As the flood waters advance in other areas, these emergency needs are growing.

"As you have already been advised, we know now that the original goal of $3,000,000 for a disaster relief fund will prove entirely inadequate. We have asked every chapter in the United States to increase its quota by at least 50 per cent. The response has been most gratifying....Every possible means of securing additional contributions should be used."

The Ulster County Chapter members and the people of Ulster county including Kingston, have always met their quotas of help in time of need, and the local Red Cross does not hesitate to ask that the people of our community sacrifice all possible to help those who are without homes, food or money and facing epidemics. The Red Cross office in the Uptown Post Office building is open every morning and afternoon to receive contributions of money whether small or large, but the Ulster County Chapter does beg that the gifts may come as fast as possible as the need is NOW.

Wanted to Find Out

Los Angeles, March 28 (AP)—George Melvin, 22, who started a minor "spy" scare through his inquiry into navy matters, was free again today with his curiosity completely satisfied. "I wanted to find out what a sailor would do if a spy asked questions," the youth said, and added: "Well, I found out."

For the Flood Sufferers

Pastor Stowe announces that a special collection, to be given to the Red Cross fund for the benefit of flood sufferers, will be taken at the Church of the Comforter at the service Sunday morning. He hopes that the response to the appeal will be as generous as possible.

Sentences Commuted

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 28 (AP)—King Boris of Bulgaria commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences imposed on Col. Damian Velcheff and Major Cyril Stancheff, convicted of participating in a plot to assassinate the monarch last year.

Borah to File in Oregon Primary, He Says, Going Today Into Northwest

Campaign Plans of Idaho's Senator Become Big Question Mark in Republican Presidential Race; Utterances Studied.

BORAH BOLT

Leaders are Asking Whether Borah After Years of Regularity Would Bolt Party.

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Senator Borah of Idaho today extended his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination into the northwest, announcing he would enter the Oregon primary.

"I am filing in the Oregon primary," the senator said in disclosing he would go after the state's 10 delegates to the national convention. March 30 is the last date for filing in the primary, which will be May 15.

Borah said he would not be able to make a speaking campaign in Oregon, however.

In declining earlier this week to enter the California primary against Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the Idahoan had explained the intensity of his campaign to win the 109 convention delegates to be selected soon in Ohio and Illinois would not permit him to speak on the coast.

His decision in that instance left the choice in the California primary between Landon and an uninstructed delegation.

Leaders Study Borah

Borah entered the Oregon race as party leaders were closely studying his public utterances for some indication of his views toward various rivals for the Republican nomination and what course he might follow if he should be turned down by the Cleveland convention.

"Would Borah bolt, after all these years of party regularity?" leaders are asking. "Would he stay in the party, but sit on the sidelines? Would he support Governor Landon of Kansas, Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, or anyone else?"

These questions are assuming increasing importance in the eyes of some Republican leaders. Many hold the view that Borah's future course will have much bearing on the party's fortunes at the polls.

Reserves Right

In his last speech, at Chicago, Borah made a statement which was interpreted in many quarters as a hint of bolting. He said he had never bolted, and had no plans now for doing so. But that he reserved the right to look over the Republican candidate and platform.

Borah has directed his attack at unnamed leaders of the party and their methods of choosing candidates. He has announced a fight to the finish with them. His friends have felt that his ultimate attitude toward candidates for the Republican nomination would be determined by his view of their relations with the party leadership that he has denounced.

CITY COURT JURY AWARDED CONKLIN VERDICT OF $25.

A jury in city court last evening after hearing the evidence in the action brought by Douglas A. Conklin of Saugerties against Louis DeVeau of Garden street, brought in a verdict in favor of Mr. Conklin for $25 and court costs. Roger H. Loughran appeared for Conklin and Thomas Plunkett for DeVeau. The action was the result of a collision between the cars of Conklin and DeVeau. Conklin was driving through Main street as DeVeau pulled out from the curb where his car had been parked. Conklin claimed DeVeau failed to signal that he was going to pull out, and DeVeau stated that as he started to drive away from the curb he had looked back of him and saw no cars approaching.

Hauptmann Guilty as Ever, Says Wilentz; Hoffman Calls Pardons Court for Monday

MOTORISTS HALTED AS GAS THREATENS CITY

Coast guardsmen, their faces clothed in handkerchiefs for protection, are shown turning back a motorist who attempted to drive into the new danger zone at Hartford, Conn. Escaping gas constituted a real menace in many parts of the city and precautions were taken to keep all persons away until leaks were repaired. (Associated Press Photo.)

New Jersey Attorney General Silent on Second Reprieve Possibility; Governor Questions Veracity of Three State Witnesses.

BRUNO CALM

Criminologist Hicks Returns from Havana; Feeling Current Governor Will Grant Reprieve.

By DALE HARRISON

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)

Trenton, N. J., March 28—In the face of a statement by Attorney General David T. Wilentz that Bruno Richard Hauptmann "is as guilty as he was the day he was convicted," Gov. Harold G. Hoffman called the Court of Pardons to convene today to consider a new clemency plea for the convicted Lindbergh baby killer.

The Governor, firmly convinced that Hauptmann was unfairly tried and that his execution, set for Tuesday night, will not solve the case, was understood to be none too optimistic that the mercy court would grant Hauptmann's plea for commutation of the death sentence.

Looking ahead to a second denial of the Hauptmann appeal by the court, the Governor sought the advice of legal authorities other than the Attorney General. He hoped to find some legal authority to issue a second stay of execution until his own investigation, active on several fronts, can be completed.

Reprieve May Follow

There was a growing belief that the Governor would issue a reprieve if the Pardons Court declined to interfere. The law says the Governor may exercise the right to reprieve for a 90-day period following conviction, but there is one precedent for reprieve after the time limit expired, and Governor Hoffman may use that as the basis for a new reprieve.

Attorney General Wilentz, who prosecuted Hauptman in the world famous trial at Flemington, took issue with the Governor's charge that the trial "reeked with unfairness, passion and prejudice."

In a statement issued from his Perth Amboy home today, the Attorney General said:

"We dispute the right of the Governor to place the prestige and weight of his office behind his latest accusation that the case 'reeks with unfairness, passion and prejudice.' He usurps the functions of the courts x x x.

"During the trial not even Hauptmann made any claim of unfairness, and defense counsel in his concluding address to the jury stated: "I think we have played along so fairly, so nicely in this trial that we can continue to go along that way.'"

The Attorney General said he understood the Governor might ask his views on a further reprieve. He said he would not volunteer his opinion on the legality of such action until asked. He has said repeatedly that the Governor does not have such authority. He is understood, however, to plan to take no action should the Governor sign such a reprieve.

Hicks Back in U. S.

Robert W. Hicks, a Washington criminologist, returned by plane today from Havana, Cuba, where he has been investigating certain phases of the case. He was to make an immediate report to the governor.

Hicks checked on a report that Isidor Fisch, friend of Hauptmann now dead, had offered to sell in Havana some "hot" money—presumably part of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom. If substantiated, the story would bolster Hauptmann's contention that the ransom money found in his possession came to him from Fisch.

Governor Hoffman also received word from Secretary Ickes of the Department of Interior, that Arch W. Loney, a department wood tester, had his permission to continue investigations in the Hauptmann case, but "strictly in a personal, private capacity."

At the same time the Department of Justice at Washington made clear that so far as that branch of the Federal government was concerned, the Lindbergh case was closed.

Hauck to the Courts

Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., the Hunterdon county prosecutor whom the governor in a scathing attack yesterday dubbed the "errand body for the attorney-general," said he would go to the courts, if necessary, to force the execution of the "Public Enemy No. 1 of the World", as Hauptmann was called by the prosecution at Flemington.

"I would rather be the errand boy for the attorney general," Hauck said, "than the errand boy of a murderer".

This sharp exchange between the chief executive and the chief assistant of the attorney general in the Hauptmann case, came in the midst of a last effort by Hauptmann's chief counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher, to have the Court of Pardons, which Governor Hoffman heads, consider a new plea for commutation of the death sentence.

Leibowitz Says High Point is Due Monday in Vera Stretz Testimony

New York, March 28 (AP).—Vera Stretz rested in her jail cell today and prepared for the ordeal of completing the story of her tragic love affair with Dr. Fritz Gebhard.

Samuel Leibowitz, attorney for the 32-year-old defendant in her trial on a charge of murdering the German trade promoter, said the high point of her story would be reached on the witness stand Monday.

Today, with her story only half completed, she remained a woman of enigma.

She loved Dr. Gebhardt "very, very dearly," she testified yesterday, yet, in a hushed voice she admitted she shot him to death in his skyscraper bedroom last November 12, with four bullets fired from a stubby revolver.

Why she did it is a puzzle so far unsolved in the testimony.

Leibowitz has implied, however, that she killed Gebhardt, a married man and father of two children, to save herself from an unnatural assault. The prosecution, though not in testimony, has intimated a view that she killed him in a passion of jealousy.

"Loved Him Madly"

"I loved him madly," she told the jurors.

He told her, she said, he had not lived with his wife in Germany for 10 years, and that he promised to get a divorce and marry her.

For a time she worked in his Fifth avenue office at $10 a week—"just to be near him", she said, although he was called away on occasional business trips.

Then, she said, letters filled with words of endearment were exchanged.

"If you had given me only a child," one of the letters she wrote him said, "I would have been lost in the charming, withal selfish, details of bearing and rearing him."

Another of her letters said, "When I think retrospectively of our adventure, I marvel that two after all different individuals could live such utterly intimate lives as we and still love each other."

"Only a Formality"

Dr. Gebhardt told her, Miss Stretz testified, obtaining his divorce in Germany would be "only a formality" and that the American girl then was to go to Germany to manage his country home, which they planned to convert into an asylum for maladjusted children, and she had expected to be married to him this spring, she said.

Miss Stretz was barely audible when Leibowitz asked her:

"You shot him, did you not?"

"Yes," she said, striving to control her emotions.

Some of the fashionably dressed women spectators, including the actress, Tallulah Bankhead, wept with her.

Miss Stretz said she and Gebhardt first became intimate last May at a hotel in Lake George.

She protested when he registered them as husband and wife, "because I wasn't his wife," she said.

But, she added, "I yielded because I loved him."

"Were you madly in love with him?" Leibowitz asked her.

"I loved him very, very dearly," she replied.

Fruit Punch to Be Ball "Delicacy"

The "Fruit Punch" booth for the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital Ball, Mrs. George W. Moore, chairman, is an innovation, this year. Formerly lemonade only was sold. This year a delicious "fruit punch," made from fresh crushed fruits, in a combination of orange, lime, pineapple and cherry, sure to "please the palate" and "quench the thirst," will take the place of lemonade. The booth itself will be most attractive in its decoration of violet, orchid and heliotrope, with clusters of violets, while here and there on the booth will be found large and small butterflies, in the violet shades. Palms will also be used in this booth, adding a springtime touch to the ensemble. Mrs. Moore is being assisted by Mrs. Peter Carey, Mrs. Frank Rafferty, Mrs. Julia Kane, Mrs. Frank O'Reilly, Mrs. William Rafferty, Mrs. John Schwenck, Mrs. Michael Fitzgerald, Mrs. Arthur Dittus, Mrs. Gustav Kogel, Mrs. Vance Hogan, Miss Regina McAndrew, Miss Molly DuBois, Mrs. Kenneth Peters, Mrs. John G. Reynolds of Port Ewen, and Mrs. Philip Foster of Rosendale.

Human Skull Unearthed.

Los Angeles, March 28 (AP)—A human skull unearthed by WPA workmen was described today by three anthhopologists as that of a man who lived when the world's largest elephants roamed southern California more than 16,000 years ago. The skull, femur and fragments of a human skeleton were found 13 feet below the surface, 1,360 feet from where the teeth of an imperial elephant of the Pleistocene epoc were discovered. Drs. A. O. Bowden, Ivan A. Lopatin and Thomas Clements of the University of Southern California concurred in placing the remains in the ice age in the days of the ground sloth and the saber-tooth tiger.

Treasury Receipts

25th Anniversary.

Albany, N. Y., March 28 (AP)—Tomorrow will be the 25th anniversary of the burning of the New York State Capitol. The flames were discovered in the Assembly Chamber at 2:45 a. m., March 29, 1911 and spread through the west or rear side of the Capitol. The damage totalled several million dollars, much of which was in valuable papers and historical documents dating back to [illegible]. The only [illegible] injured in the blaze, Thomas Rogers, was killed last year in a fire truck collision.

L., What Does It All Mean?"; evening, "The Triumph of the Cross".

Guest Speaker in St. James Church

Irene Ihde

Mrs. Irene Ihde, world traveler, musician and composer, will be the guest speaker in St. James M. E. Church in a series of public services, March 29 to April 5.

Mrs. Ihde comes to St. James with the background of a great experience. She has traveled around the world and lived in Japan and France. Her concert and speaking work took her all over the islands of Japan. She was presented at the Japanese court during the chrysanthemum imperial garden party of 1922.

Mrs. Ihde is said to be intensely interesting, powerfully persuasive, charmingly humorous and withal thoroughly evangelistic.

On Tuesday evening, 7:30 p. m., she will appear in Japanese costume and speak on the subject, "The Orient is Marching," in which she deals with present-day problems of Japan and China.

The church cordially welcomes the public to all of the services.

Dr. Stern to Address Trinity Men's Club

Dr. Samuel Stern will give an illustrated talk to the members of Trinity Lutheran Men's Club on "The Prison System of New York State," at their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, March 31. Dr. Stern is well qualified to speak on this subject, as he is a member of the advisory board of Elmira State Reform School and the members of the club will find his talk a most interesting one. The business meeting will start at 7:30 o'clock and at the conclusion of Dr. Stern's address, refreshments will be served and a social hour will follow. Every member is urged to be present and a cordial invitation to attend this meeting is extended to all boys of the Sunday School above the age of 16 years.

Religious Drama at Presbyterian Church

"Simon's Wife's Mother," a religious drama by Lydia Glover DeSeo, will be presented in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday night, by the Women's Auxiliary of the Clinton Avenue Church. A brief service of worship will precede, beginning at 7:30.

This play is in three scenes, all in the home of Simon Peter in Capernaum, on the shores of the Lake of Galilee. It poignantly depicts the kindly ministry of Jesus and the effort of his life and example upon a group of disciples and friends.

The part of Simon is taken by Mrs. Charles Relyea; that of Adah, his young wife, by Miss Virginia Countryman. Villah, her mother, is portrayed by Mrs. Howard D. McGrath. Hannah and Ruth, two friends of Adah, are Mrs. Huyler VanWagnen and Mrs. Berlin Weeks. Rizpah, a neighbor, is a role taken by Mrs. George Miller, while Miriam McGrath plays the part of her child, Mary.

John, James and Andrew are depicted by Mrs. Josiah Doughty, Mrs. Clarence Carle and Mrs. Marshall Winchell. Mrs. Robert Thompson is Phoebe, an old friend of the family.

Well known hymns will be sung during the service of worship. The drama takes the place of the sermon, being in itself a sermon. Miss Edna Merrihew will interpret familiar hymn tunes between the scenes, the Junior Choir will lead in the ministry of music and Raymond DuBois will sing a baritone solo.

An Easter Dream

By Rennetts C. Miller, D. D.

We are approaching Easter with its immortal hope and assurance. One night this past week about midnight I was suddenly awakened, startled and thrilled by a most unusual dream. Dreaming is a rare experience to me. This dream was probably the most impressive one of my life, and profoundly comforting. Since then I persuaded myself that it might interest others. Hence I venture to relate it.

The days previous to the dream had been somewhat strenuous and hectic with hard work, but not particularly nerve wracking. My evening meal before the dream was very simple and easily digested. I might add that I enjoy almost perfect health, which for one three score and ten is not very common, I suspect. In short, there seemed little in my physical condition to call forth anything dramatic in my dreaming.

The dream or vision was as follows: In my dream I was startled by the sight of an angelic visitant—a tall and beautiful woman who seemed, as we would consider it, about 35 years of age. Her garb was that of the angels as portrayed by the great medieval painters. Her face was remarkably free from wrinkles or trace of care or worry. It was illumined by a smile that only one from "the better country" could possess. The vision can never fade from my memory.

At first I did not recognize the face. But as I gazed upon it gradually the features revealed clearly that it was my mother's face. It was not the face of my mother in 1930 in her ninetieth year, when she left us, that I saw in my dream.

All the marks of care, toil, struggle and sacrifice of mother for her children, so clearly seen in her face earlier in life, were gone. The tears had been wiped away. The worry about the farm mortgage and the lives and education of her children, that had brought the wrinkles to her face, had all been smothed out by some angelic cosmetician, or rather by basking in the transforming rays of the Sun of Righteousness, and the beatific fellowship of the redeemed.

Just then in my dream, as I recognized Mother, she greeted me with the same old smile that on countless occasions thrilled my heart during her stay upon the earth. With a wave of her hand, pointing upward toward the heavenly country, she said, "You are coming, too, by and by, aren't you?" With these words she smiled as I replied, "Yes, Mother."

Perhaps it was only a dream. I confess I have never had much confidence in dreams. They seem so often the "stuff" that superstitious folks feed upon. But as a hint of the immortal life by which we are deeply impressed at Easter time it helps us in our struggles here. Perhaps Lowell was as much of a philosopher as poet when he wrote:

"To let the new life in we know
Desire must ope the portal.
Perhaps this longing to be so
Helps make the soul immortal."

Anyway, such a dream becomes vital with hope and comfort in the light of the teaching of the Master, who said, "I go to prepare a place for you . . . that where I am you may be also."

May this Eastertide help us all to forget many of the fleeting things of earth that now so pathetically engross our thought and time and give us some fresh glimpses and realization of things eternal.

Youth Council Choir Rehearsal Tonight

The first rehearsal for the choir that will sing at the Youth Council's Easter dawn service will be held this evening at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. Any member of any young people's group from any church from the city that would like to sing in the choir on Easter morning can do so by coming to the rehearsal this evening at the "Y." The service will be held on Easter dawn in the rear of the high school.

It looked for a while as if some American financiers wanted State Socialism, but at last private money is being lent again to build homes.

Negro Health Week Program Planned

Tuesday evening, March 31, the M. C. Lawton Progressive Club will render a program at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church, in recognition of National Negro Health Week. The program is a very interesting one, and the public is extended a cordial invitation to attend. The Junior Jubilee Singers, a quartet of young men from Company 1245, Camp Breeze Hill, Wawayanda, will render several groups of selections. The program is as follows:

The program will begin at 8:30 p. m. No admission will be charged but a silver offering will be lifted. Refreshments for sale after the program. Mrs. M. V. Walker, president, Miss J. E. Van Der Zee, committee chairman.

Fireside Forum At "Y" Sunday

The seventh and final in a series of fireside forums will be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday evening at 9:15 p. m. The topic of tomorrow night's discussion will be "Is World Peace Possible?" The leader will be Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom. The forum is open to the general public.

Tomorrow night's discussion will mark the end of a series of seven biweekly forums that have been held throughout the months of January, February and March. The forums have covered seven subjects that are of current importance and altogether were attended by nearly 350 people. All of the forums were jointly sponsored by the Ulster County Christian Youth Council and the Young Men's Christian Association.

The forums are held in the large front room of the "Y," those attending being grouped around the fireplace in an informal fashion. Refreshments are served following the close of the discussion.

The Veterans of Future Wars say they want as good a slogan for the next war as "make the world safe for democracy." How about "make the world safe for autocracy?"

Saturday Social Review

D. A. R. Meeting Thursday.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., will have as their speaker at the regular meeting Thursday afternoon, Dr. Elizabeth Moore Parsons, who will tell of the medical work at Twillingate, Newfoundland. While there Dr. Parsons and her husband were connected with the Notre Dame Memorial Hospital. The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. John Groves and Mrs. William S. Hancock. Preceding the regular meeting there will be a meeting of the local board.

Spross to Broadcast on Wednesday

Wednesday afternoon, April 1, Kingstonians who wish to turn the dials of their radios to WGY or any of the affiliated stations at 1:45 will hear Charles Gilbert Spross in a 30 minute broadcast with Joseph Stopak, violinist. These artists will play Mr. Spross' Violin Sonata. This is the composition that Mrs. Florence W. Cubberly played from manuscript, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Spross, at the meeting of the Musical Society of Kingston devoted to a study of Spross music.

Frances and Barbara, infant daughters of the Rev. Goodrich Gates and Mrs. Gates of Tremper avenue are spending several weeks at the home of their grandparents, Dr. John A. Diekmann and Mrs. Diekmann, of Cincinnati.

On Tuesday afternoon, March 24, Mrs. J. Richard Miller of Jefferson avenue entertained during both the afternoon and evening in honor of her mother, Mrs. Ayrus A. DuBois the occasion being her eightieth birthday. The house was prettily decorated with spring flowers. A large birthday cake with eighty candles formed the table centerpiece. Among the evening guests were Mrs. Dubois' niece, Mrs. Harold R. Wilson, of St. Louis. She, together with Miss Kathleen Deyo, assisted in pouring.

On Tuesday Miss Ruth Hotaling of Bloomington, Miss Helen Churchwell of Ulster Park, Ned Dunbar of Hurley and John Callahan of Sawkill were members of the annual 4-H pilgrimage to Albany. While there they attended a session of the state legislature, visited the Education Building and Schuyler Mansion. At four o'clock the 120 delegates were entertained at a reception at the Executive Mansion by Governor Herbert Lehman and Mrs. Lehman. The members attending from this county were accompanied by Maynard J. Hencle, 4-H County Club agent.

Barnard Joy, formerly chairman of 4-H activities for Ulster county, has been spending the past two weeks in New Orleans where he is engaged in the government rehabilitation program.

Local Y. W. C. A. Girls Attend Troy Meeting

This afternoon 21 delegates from the Business Girls' Club of the Kingston Y. W. C. A. motored to Troy, N. Y., where they are the guests of the "Y" at the annual Regional Business Girls' Conference. There will be sessions with prominent speakers tonight, while the conference will close tomorrow following a dinner. Those attending from here are Miss Marion Phillips, Miss Elsie Phillips, Miss Alice Gillette, Miss Miriam Halloran, Miss Margaret Messinger, Miss Bertha Waterman, Miss Mary Howard, Miss Blanche Blandford, Miss Adiska Conro, Miss Jean Estey, Miss Stella Ketterson, Miss Nellie Elmendorf, Miss Mathilda Martin, Miss Ruth Bell, Miss Lillian Buswell, Miss Alma Tyler, Miss Helen Bryant, Miss Ruth Vandenburgh, Miss Dorothy Elston, Miss Helen Gronemeyer and Miss Edna Skinner.

The annual Guidon Drill of the Albany Academy Cadet Battalion which was held last Friday evening at the Tenth Infantry Armory, Albany, was won by Company D of which Herbert Lloyd Shultz is captain. As Company D is composed for the most part of the younger and more inexperienced students, the winning of the guidons by that company is a reflection of the captain's fine leadership. This company has had the honor of winning the drill only twice before in the history of the academy.

Following the drill the academy cadets held their annual guidon dance. Among those chaperoning were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Shultz, formerly of this city, parents of Captain Shultz.

Miss Elizabeth Schneider of East Orange, N. J., who has a wide circle of Kingston friends, has been spending the winter at La Jolla, Cal., where she will be joined early in April by Mrs. William Rodie of New York city, who will make the return trip east with her.

Debaters Win at Poughkeepsie.

On Tuesday Frederic Holcomb, Jr., Miss Cecile Thompson, Miss Evelyn Olivet and Miss Priscilla Nolan, accompanied by Miss Marion Byrne of the Kingston High School faculty, motored to Poughkeepsie where they were the luncheon guests of the high school debating association. Following the luncheon the two teams debated the subject of socialized medicine. The Kingston team, upholding the negative, won the debate.

Mrs. Augusta V. D. Hutton and Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, who have been spending the past six weeks at Del Ray Ray and Palm Beach, Fla., will return to their homes today. En route north they stopped at Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D. C.

Skidmore Graduates Meet

On Tuesday afternoon those Kingstonians who had graduated from Skidmore College, Saratoga, N. Y., met at the home of Mrs. Ernest E. Althouse, 105 Maiden Lane, together with Miss Alice Haines of Poughkeepsie, also an alumna, to make plans for Skidmore Mid-Hudson Alumnae Association. This association includes those graduates of the college who live on either the east or west bank of the Hudson river from Hudson to Peekskill. During the meeting the hostess served tea. Those attending were: Mrs. Ernest Althouse, Mrs. Barnard Joy, Miss Mary Hubbard, Miss Dorothy Brooks, Mrs. George Robinson, Miss Margaret Howe, Mrs. Russell Thomas and Miss Alice Haines.

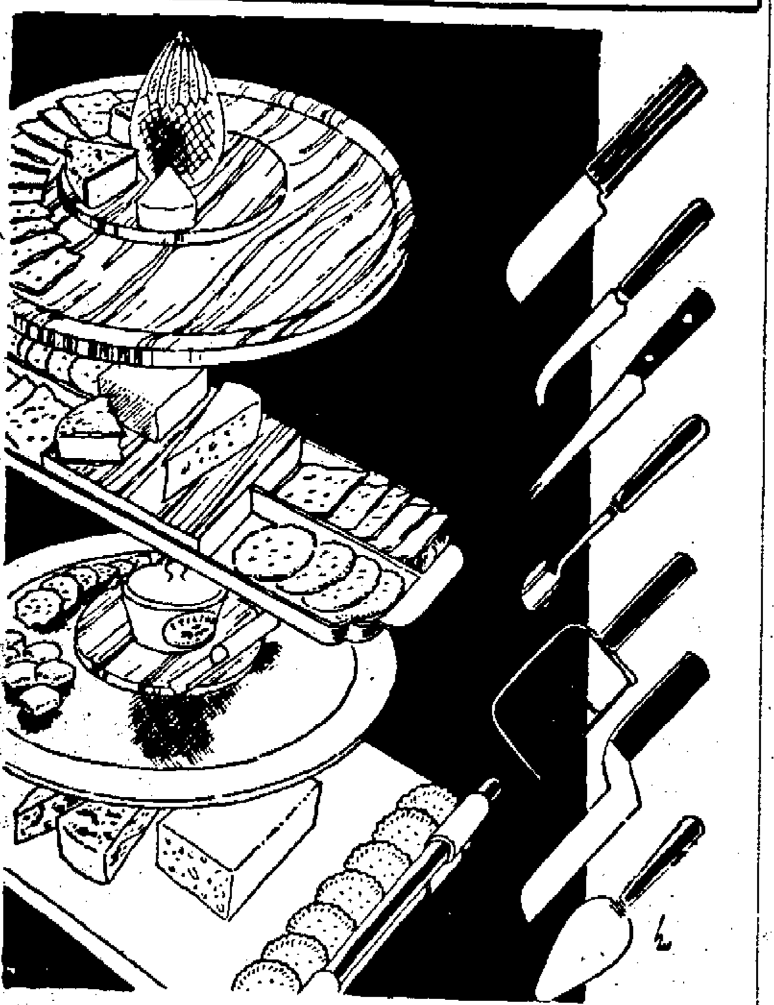
Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Serving Cheese Is Really An Art; Right Knives And Trays Essential



A scroll-saw knife for Roquefort, a scoop for Stilton.

By MARGERY TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1936, By McCalls Magazine for The Freeman)

The hostess may feel she is living in a very informal age, but she knows she must be right to the last sophisticated detail.

Even in such a minor matter as serving cheese, she must not horrify a connoisseur by offering a knife which is "utterly wrong" for that particular cheese or by using a fancy tray instead of the proper cheese board.

So that for crumbly cheeses like Roquefort, there is a knife like a scrollsaw; Stilton and other soft cheese have their narrow spoon scoops, and a paddle-like slicer is the only safe tool for producing the fashionable thin slivers of Swiss cheese.

Individual servers come in pick-like, two-prong form for easily cutting off a cube of cheese and transferring it to your own plate. Facing a large cheese, you need have no fears with the hipped knife with ingenious handle which permits cutting clear through.

The hostess may be more fancy-free with cheese boards without fear. Cheese boards may be round, square or oblong. A round wooden one, of hand-turned aged American cherry wood, has a raised center dais and room for crackers around the edge. A square wooden board can be used separately as on a chromium tray surrounded by four compartments for crackers or other tidbits.

Connoisseurs favor wooden boards, but the hostess may use glass, English covered earthenware or china trays. Very new is tortoise-shell glass; one fan-shaped tray shows its translucent colors so decoratively that you may forget about the cheese.

Zinnias Dislike Sprinkling

Home gardeners will have greater success growing the popular zinnia if they keep in mind some of that flower's eccentricities. Its construction is such that it can stand water often and in abundant quantities, but it is choicy about the manner in which it gets its liquids. Zinnias should be watered by wetting the soil rather than by sprinkling the plant. Zinnias are often afflicted by mildew, or white mould. This is often induced by dampness, and it is indicated that zinnias are less likely to fall prey to mildew if the gardener waters them only indirectly, through the soil.

SPRING GARDEN PLANS REVIVE IN MANY AREAS

In a large part of the country the home gardeners are now getting out seed catalogs and planning the spring planting. Perhaps they are also laying out plans for a new garden or an extension or remodeling of the old one.

No doubt few of these eager horticulturists know just how to go about laying out or making such things. The best thing to do about the pool and the paths is to employ a good contractor to do the work and, if one is handy, a landscape architect to lay them out. Simplicity should be the keynote in small gardens; the temptation to crowd everything one has ever seen in a space 50 by 50 feet should be resisted.

A pool of simple design, a bird bath on a pedestal, near some shrubbery, and possibly a concrete or stone or iron seat placed in some angle that commands a pleasant vista are about the most that should be attempted. Bird baths and seats may be purchased at almost any large seed store.

White Horse an Emblem

The standard of the ancient Saxons was a white horse, and thus became the emblem of the County of Kent, states a writer in Answers Magazine. A galloping white horse is the device of the House of Hanover. There is a third "white horse"—a rampant animal, the device of the House of Savoy, descended from the Saxon horse. It is from the second of these that the popular inn sign, the White Horse, is obtained, and usually the animal is depicted as galloping, according to the capacity of the artist.

Bushmaster Snakes

Bushmasters are rare in menageries not so much on account of their scarcity in their native countries as because they seldom survive in captivity. They are highly strung snakes, and the rough treatment they receive during capture, for they are too dreaded to be treated gently, usually causes a hunger strike that only ends with their deaths. They are the largest and most deadly of the South American snakes.

Bright Accessories Promise Zestful Feminine Easter Parade

This is the type of costume American designers have evolved for smart women to wear on Easter. Jo Copeland makes it of navy blue wool, combining a slim short-sleeved frock and three-quarter length cape. White pique bands the dress neck and sleeves and makes the lining for the cape which can be unbuttoned and cleaned. Lily Dache designs the pert peaked hat of black Milan straw trimmed with white grosgrain ribbon which completes the costume.

New York (AP).—Easter fashions, mingling ideas from New York and Paris designers, stress accent as the spice in the 1936 recipe for spring chic.

When smart Americans appears in Easter parades from Fifth avenue to Michigan boulevard, the sober costume hues will be lightened by some of the most striking and colorful accessories the fashion world has launched in years.

Rustling taffeta petticoats, suede and felt gloves and gay flower accents at waistlines and throats will add the same vivid touches as bright hued threads running across the background to a dark tapestry. So important are the accessories that fashionable femininity must count its colors carefully to avoid the pitfalls of too many and too bright hues.

Discreet black and navy blue are the favorite costume colors, but they are given new life by such accents as sulphur yellow, coral, Kelley green and hyacinth. A new plum red and a new "helium" white (the color of a balloon bag) are chic touches for gray and black. Beige and brown have been thrust into the background.

Suits in Favor.

Suits, ranging all the way from mannish tailleurs to ensembles combining a slim frock with a short swagger coat or cape, will be in high favor with smart women on Easter morning. Touched with colorful accessories, they will be the essence of chic.

One smart New Yorker plans to wear a black wool frock and matching short coat with sulphur yellow suede gloves and a belt having a sheaf of sunlight tulips thrust into one side. Another will accent her navy tailleur with a cornflower boutonniere and blouse.

The smartest long coats will be simple and plain—designed without a touch of fur. Close-fitting mannish Chesterfield and trim redingotes promise to be favorites.

Under them will be worn a wide variety of frocks. Some of the newest are dark crepes or wools having a bright high neckline band and swath belt to match a swishing petticoat. Others are chic prints—colored animals or flowers printed on a dark ground.

Wide Choice in Hats.

Easter bonnets, stamped with the mark of 1936, will complete the costumes. Small sailors rimmed with veils, dark toques touched with bright flower clusters, Chinese mandarin hats and wide brimmed flat crowned straws will all be in evidence.

Glamour marks the evening frocks which will step out to Easter festivities. Wide skirts and flower trims are the rule on most of the models. Silk mousselines, chiffons, nets, laces and organzas in tones of black, white, navy, chartreuse green and pink are designed with full skirts and low decolletes on which flowers are often massed. A number of net models have long sleeves, while other frocks are topped by short jackets.

There is a wide variety of evening wraps. Full length capes of velvet or shimmering lame are ready to complete the most formal frocks. Besides these there are full length fitted coats of ribbed silks or swishing taffeta and pert short jackets which often match the material of the gown.

A New Development in Hedges

By The Master Gardener

Are you thinking of adding a hedge to your home grounds this spring? If you are, now is the time to order it, and be sure to give consideration to the new varieties which have been developed.

A new form of barberry has recently been patented that should soon supplant many of the present variations of barberry now in use. It is called Truehedge Columnberry and grows perfectly upright and pyramidal in shape, and because of this upright growth, it takes much less time to develop a hedge of the necessary height than was formerly the case. The foliage is said to be dense and glossy, of a deep shade of green, is evenly distributed, and begins right at the base. It is covered with red berries in the fall of the year and the foliage turns to scarlet, making a most beautiful effect.

It is also said to be rust-immune and perfectly hardy. It is claimed that it can stand a temperature of 30 degrees below zero without a sign of freezing.

Another good feature of this hedge is that it lends itself remarkably well to shearing.

And when you plant your hedge, remember in addition to thorough preparation of the soil to incorporate a supply of complete balanced plantfood in the soil, to insure the new hedge a good start in growth.

Just as soon as the ground is workable, give your established hedge a feeding of complete balanced plantfood, too.

PROVES MANY VEGETABLES CONTAIN VITAMIN "C"

Professor D. K. Tressler of the N. Y. State Agricultural Experiment Station made news for amateur gardeners recently when he said his experiments proved that many vegetables contained as much as, if not more, vitamin C than the citrus fruits.

"Peppers, horseradish, parsley, turnip greens and spinach are more powerful sources of this vitamin than is orange juice," he said. "Cabbage, cress, peas, parsnips and turnips have about the same amount of this vitamin as does orange juice."

The speaker pointed out that "contrary to the general belief, the cooking of vegetables in an open kettle does not destroy a large portion of vitamin C." Little loss is found from this method of cooking, he said.

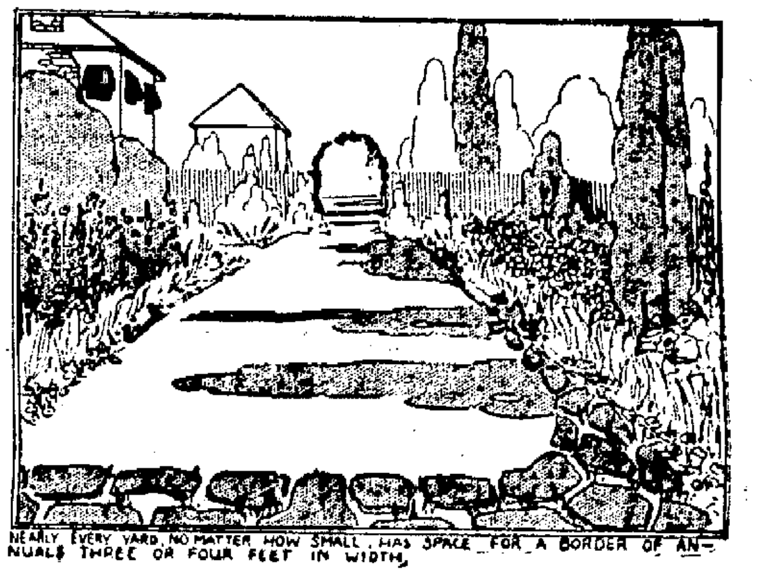
Annuals Give Brilliant Color Effects From June to Frost



NEARLY EVERY YARD, NO MATTER HOW SMALL, HAS SPACE FOR A BORDER OF ANNUALS THREE OR FOUR FEET IN WIDTH.

Flower gardens are very much like love affairs in that they are personal manifestations, no two being exactly alike and there is no accounting for tastes.

For the owner of a small garden, particularly for renters, the value of annuals is not as thoroughly appreciated as it should be. By their use a brilliant display of flowers is easily obtained from June until frost. Nearly every place, no matter how small, has space for a border and little more than 3 or 4 feet wide, 10 feet long or more is sufficient.

The most satisfactory way of dealing with such a space is to plant it to annuals of one or two different colors in varying tones. Suppose that a blue and pink scheme should be decided upon, a popular combination and always effective. For the back row pink sweet peas for early bloom or several of them might be planted. Later gladiolus in pink shades might replace them. Petunias, pink snapdragons, scabiosas, annual larkspurs, clarkias, nasturtiums and pink balsams would take care of the pink portion of it.

The blues might be furnished by pansies, Chinese forget-me-nots, dwarf morning glories, annual larkspurs and lupins, with dwarf lobelia and ageration as edging.

All these annuals are easily grown from seed sown in the open ground. They should be arranged so that the pink and blue groups alternate harmoniously, the tall plants at the back of the border and the lower growing ones being graded to the front.

Pink dahlias might also be added to the border for the late fall bloom; plant them in seed boxes early in the spring and transplant later.

The groups should be about 3 feet in length in order to produce a good effect, and from 1 to 3 feet in depth according to the total width of the border. The length can vary considerably, but the width should be such as to make weeding and cultivation convenient.

Such a planting would not only give a beautiful color effect for the greater part of the summer, but would furnish a generous supply of material for bouquets in the house.

Feeding Lawn Should Be First Garden Task in Spring

It is often said that the secret of accomplishing best results in any job is the ability to do first things first.

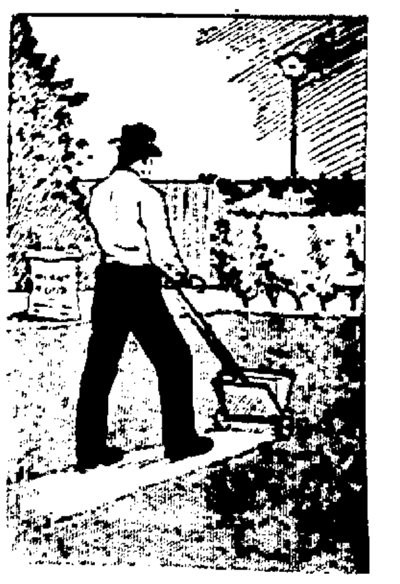
Mark it down in your garden calendar that one of the very first things you are going to do in the way of outdoor gardening work is feed your lawn. For it's most important that a good supply of plantfood be available in the soil when grass starts growth in the spring. The beginning of this growth is much earlier than most of us realize. Grass thrives best while the temperature is still cool.

The ideal time to feed the established lawn is just as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The soil is then in a pitted and honeycombed condition and allows the plantfood ready access to the soil.

And another important point—if you apply plantfood very early, before top growth has started, it is not necessary to water the plantfood in, and this is a considerable saving in time and energy.

Remember that a well-fed lawn effectively discourages weed growth, too, for the thick turf makes it very difficult for weed seeds to germinate.

The best and most economical way to apply plant food is with a spreader, although the hand broadcast method will do very well. Four pounds to 100 square feet of lawn area is best for the early spring application, with succeeding application getting about 2 pounds.



Plant Food Spreader and Seeder is Handy Tool

Just a little later, after your perennials have started growth and just before your cultivate them for the first time, give them a feeding of complete plantfood also, and work it lightly into the soil. You will be well repaid in earliness, quality and quantity of bloom.

Few gardeners have enough flowers to cut for bouquets, and they are inclined to mar border or bed to get them. A better way is a combination cut-flower and vegetable garden, where both are combined. The flowers make fine edgings and backgrounds, or may be planted in rows like the carrots and radishes.

Consolation

Chill flows the song of withered age
  As surly winter glooms departing day;
No more bright fancy gilds the glowing page
  As weary feet go down the dusty way.
No feeble hand may wake life's lilting song
  Or tuneless harp prolong love's gentle strain;
No frigid numbers bear the eager soul along
  Or sooth with tender melody the mourner's pain.
Alas dumb singer by that tideless sea
  Whose ripples sigh upon an unknown shore,
Soon shalt thou pass life and memory
  Song and the singer still forever more.
And yet some deed thy hand hath wrought
  Some message that thy willing feet hath sped;
Even some kindly pure unselfish thought
  May live to bless though thou art dead

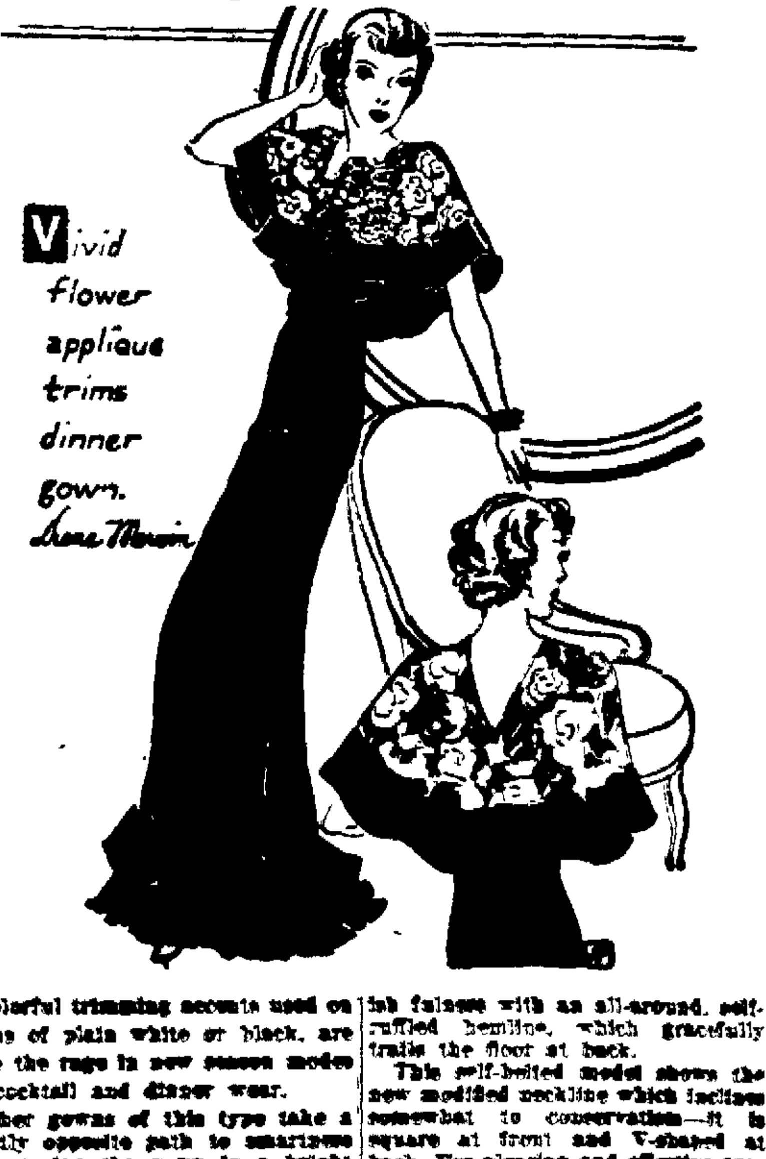
MODES OF THE MOMENT



Vivid flower applique trims dinner gown.
Anne Marvin

Colorful trimming accents used on gowns of plain white or black, are quite the rage in new season modes for cocktail and dinner wear.

Other gowns of this type take a directly opposite path to smartness by featuring the gown in a bright flower print and trimming of plain color to harmonize with the predominating shade in the print design. Both versions are decidedly effective and make charming creations for semi-formal affairs.

The dinner gown of black sheer crepe, sketched above, follows smartly fitted and figure moulding lines, only the lower skirt displaying modish fulness with an all-around, self-ruffled hemline, which gracefully trails the floor at back.

This self-belted model shows the new modified neckline which inclines somewhat to conservatism—it is square at front and V-shaped at back. For pleasing and effective contrast, bright and colorful flowers are cut from vividly printed silk and appliqued on its novel cape collar, while three large and decorative trimming flowers are also used to place color contrast at the front neckline.

For later season wear, this stunning gown was shown in white sheer crepe with vivid flower applique.

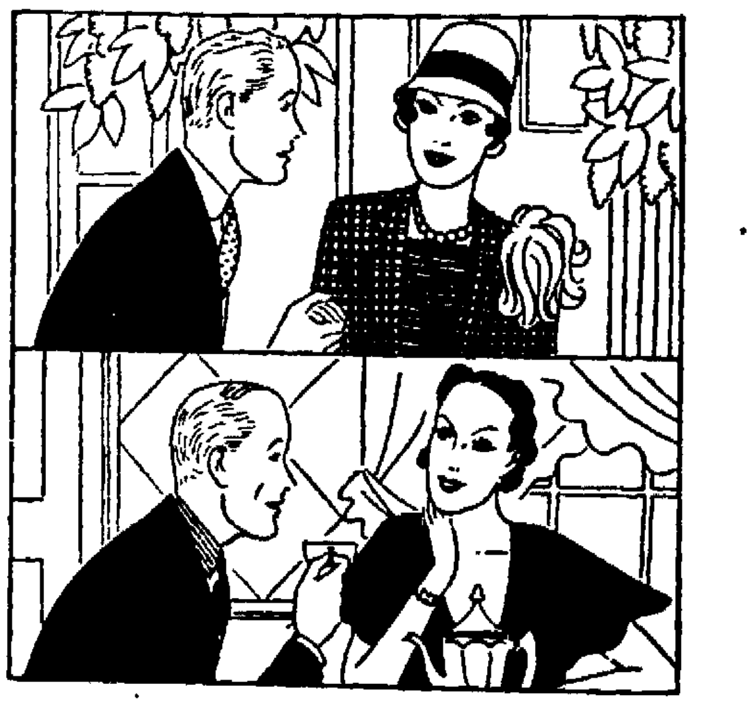
COQUETRY IN LOVE



SHE'S CHARMING AS SWEETHEART AND WIFE

What is to be said for the coquette? Nothing, if she's merely a heartless little fraud in the game of love. A great deal, if her coquetry is a graceful, winsome way of playing at this game!

The clever coquette never appears to know as much as a man about any subject which is his specialty, whether it's automobiles, sports, bookkeeping, or even making coffee She will appear strong in feminine, womanly matters; weak and helpless when it's time to let the man feel important and superior.

The refreshing quality of coquetry is carried over from courtship days through married life by the clever woman. The girl that we see in the sketch—there she is, as she looked with half-teasing eyes at her sweetheart in 1926, and as the happy wife of today. Still lively, still steering clear of the humdrum, still not taking her husband's interest for granted but keeping the sparkle of romance alive by a bit of coquetry

There is an art in this most delicate of all human relations which it well repays women to learn. The popular girl, the happy wife, has taken a few bright notes on what men seem to prefer in women. Do they really prefer "dumb Doras?" Is the clinging vine out of date?

It is important for girls to know whether office work, side by side with men, destroys romance or promotes it. It is important for the wife to know what are the little things, daily neglected or daily observed, that keep the family together or send it drifting on to a wreck.

Love is too complicated to be entirely without its problems. Don't trust merely to guesswork, to the idle chatter of inexperienced friends

EXPERT STUDIES KIDNAP LADDER

Arch W. Loney, PWA engineer and wood expert, is shown at his home in Washington as he pointed out the difference between the Lindbergh kidnap ladder and an ordinary ladder. Loney visited Hauptmann's former home with Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, to study the wood in the attic. "There are some discrepancies about the kidnap ladder," Loney said. Clay Pipes Made by Hand

Hundreds of fortunes have been lost trying to make clay pipes by machinery but the handcrafters have retained their supremacy. Over 2,000 different shapes are made yearly by one factory alone. The color and design of the pipes are the only changes in the industry during more than 130 years. A majority of designs have decorated bowls in the cast of Robert Burns, while others flaunt Shakespeare at the end of a curly stem.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sales Talk Forgotten

Owego, N. Y.—The stock of a department store here was inspected by its strangest visitor on record. A large deer jumped through a rear window, glanced about the store, then jumped out again.

Hook, Line and Sinker

Walla Walla, Wash.—Dr. Chester S. Maxy, political science professor at Whitman College, asked his class why it would recommend four books he named for reference work.

All but one student expressed high regard for the volumes, but changed their minds when the professor announced there were no such books.

Cop Turns Inventor

New York—Patrolman Cornelius Fiske got tired of putting license numbers down in his notebook and crossing them off when warning calls were cancelled. So he devised a set of transparent celluloid holders for the dash of his cruise car, into which the numbers are slipped, then retained or discarded at will. His invention may be adopted as standard equipment for police radio cars.

Home Bureau.

The Kingston unit of Home Bureau will hold its third lesson in home nursing in the Home Bureau rooms, 276 Wall street, Tuesday March 31, at 3:30 p. m. Dr. James A. Mather will speak on "Approaching Middle Life with Perfect Health Medically and Mentally." The public is cordially invited.

A wealthy Hindu troubled with insomnia offers $10,000 to anybody who'll put him to sleep. What a chance for our political orators!

Stop complaining about your feet

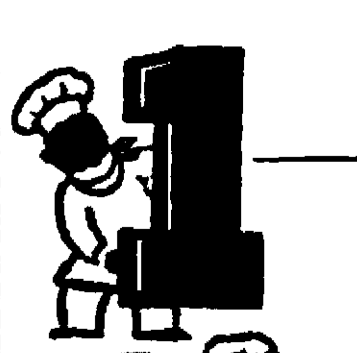
A RECIPE FOR RESULTS

If you want to hire a maid, rent a room, lease your home, sell your furniture, get rid of your car, find a partner, sell your business, recover a lost dog, engage a typist—

—there is one sure, quick and ECONOMICAL way to do it. Use the DAILY FREEMAN WANT ADS! Here's how easy it is:



Decide what you want to say in your ad. Then write it, leaving out unnecessary words.

CALL 2200 if you have a phone or drop by the public service desk, Freeman office. Read your ad to the ad-taker. She will help you with it, perhaps shorten it, and then will read it back to you for O. K.

That's all . . . except to sit back and wait for results which won't be long in coming because nearly everybody reads the

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, March 28 (AP)—Scattered stocks got back on their feet in today's brief stock market session in the face of further foreign monetary unsettlement.

At the same time many confused traders hugged the sidelines and there was moderate selling in several sections of the list. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

With the French franc dropping under the gold shipping point to the lowest level since October 4, last, and the Dutch guilder exhibiting weakness, financial opinion blew hot and cold on the possibilities inherent in the situation abroad.

It was noted that the French bank raised its discount rate from 3½ per cent to 5. This was the first change in the rate since February 2.

Yvonne Climbs Out

Callander, Ont., March 28 (AP)—Yvonne Dionne celebrated her 22nd month of life today by clambering from her bed and awakening the DaFoe hospital staff before sunrise. It was her newest stunt, this climbing out of bed alone. Her four sisters watched with interest and it was no time at all before all five were hanging at their nurses' doors. Today's early morning performance was another indication to Dr. Allan Roy DaFoe, their physician, of the marked sense of curiosity and initiative the quintuplets have developed as they near their second birthday on May 28.

The most unprofitable hand into which any man or woman ever fell is that of pressing a quarrel.

Bodies of 4 Men Found in Canyon

Oracle, Ariz., March 28 (AP)—A wrecked airplane, a fresh fall of snow and the jutting rock of a mountain canyon told the story today of an aerial tragedy in which four men lost their lives.

A two-day search by posses, army planes and soldiers from both sides of the Mexican border ended yesterday when a range riding cowboy found the flaming red ship dashed to splinters against a canyon wall in the rugged Galiuro mountains, 26 miles east of here.

The victims, all of Phoenix, Ariz., were:

Paul Odneal, 30, president of the Copperclad Airways and pilot of the plane.

Harold Marks, 31, attorney, and a director of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

John Powles, 35, executive secretary of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce.

Paul Swasey, 31, drug store manager.

Evidence at the scene indicated to searchers that the pilot had become lost in a snowstorm and while flying down the canyon the right wing of the plane had struck a rock pinnacle.

The wreckage was found by Tom Rhodes, 23-year-old cowboy, who had not heard of the search for the missing plane. He rode 26 miles on horseback to notify authorities.

The bodies were taken to Phoenix last night. A coroner's jury, chosen from among the first searchers to arrive, returned a verdict that the four men died as the result of an airplane crash.

The guests spent the evening in playing cards, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Benedictine Ball Easter Monday Night

The annual Benedictine Hospital Ball which is to be held at the Municipal Auditorium on Easter Monday night, April 13, holds every promise of being one of the largest affairs of its kind. The ball room will be fittingly decorated for this festive spring occasion. The entertainment, which will precede the dancing will feature artists known to the screen, stage and radio. The music for dancing will be furnished by the most prominent local orchestras. Besides delicious refreshments will also be served, so that an evening of entertainment appealing to all tastes is being devised. It is through this ball, held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the hospital, that funds vital to the success of the institution's charity work are raised and the citizens have always been generous in their response to support this worthy cause. The chairman of the committees arranging this dance are: Mrs. James Higley, president of the Auxiliary and general chairman; tickets, Mrs. Edward Loughran and Miss Mary Campbell; publicity, Mrs. Walter J. Miller and Mrs. Alfred Cook; music, Miss Mary McGill, Mrs. Walter C. Miller and Miss Margaret Kennedy; entertainment, Mrs. Frank Egan, Mrs. Charles Mullen, Mrs. Walter L. Fales, and Mrs. Paul Purcell; flower booth, Mrs. Thomas Crowley, Mrs. James Mather and Mrs. Emil Goodyear; fruit punch, Mrs. George Moore; supper, Mrs. John Herrick and Mrs. Patrick Lloyd and ladies check room, Miss Katherine Welsh.

Why Traffic Signal Winked at Cars Here

Auto drivers on Wall street and North Front street yesterday were somewhat startled when the big traffic signal at the street intersection persisted in blinking at them instead of ringing a bell and then showing either green or red as the case might be.

A glance at the police blotter, however, explained the reason. The blotter contained an entry that Ben Fein had backed his car into the control box on the curb in front of the Rose and Gorman big store on North Front street and moved the control box off its base.

Mayor Heiselman's Broadcast Postponed

Mayor C. J. Heiselman received a telephone call early this morning from the office of the State Mayors' Conference in Albany that the broadcast slated for this evening at 6:15 o'clock over Station WGY was postponed until next Saturday evening at the same time. It was stated that the National Broadcasting Company in New York notified WGY that it would be necessary to use the time allotted for the State Mayors' Conference broadcast for an emergency program. Mayor Heiselman was slated to discuss what he considered a modern form of city government.

Conway Case Is Put Over Term

The negligence action brought by Frank Tyler, Jr., against George Conway, a Shandaken action, was not tried in supreme court Friday and the case was finally put over the term. At the morning session the case was moved and attorney for plaintiff asked for a postponement on the grounds that he was unable to get one of his doctors in court. Roger H. Loughran who appeared for the plaintiff said that Dr. John B. Gross of Phoenicia was busy and unable to come. On inquiry of the court he said no subpoena had been issued and the doctor would not come without a subpoena. At the suggestion of the court a recess was taken and it was suggested that a subpoena be issued and served by the plaintiff, bringing the desired witness in court "forthwith."

However during the recess after the subpoena had been made out, it was decided that in the event the sheriff went to Phoenicia and brought back the witness it would be too late in the day to go to trial so the subpoena was recalled and the case went over on consent of the defendant's counsel and Mr. Loughran. Jurors were excused until Monday morning.

An inquest was taken in No. 232, Mana Berman against Wallace Anderson, an action brought to recover for negligence. The plaintiff was represented by Charles F. Kaiser, Jr., of Ellenville. Plaintiff was awarded $150. The action arose over a collision on the Williamsburg bridge in New York. Defendant's car struck the car of the plaintiff in a rear end collision on the bridge. In an argument which ensued the traffic officer compelled the two cars to move on in order that traffic might flow over the bridge. The offending driver promised to stop at the end of the bridge and talk over the matter but when Berman arrived at the bridge there was no car awaiting him. However Berman had taken the number of the car and he sued the operator and owner of the car.

The day calendar for Monday is: Nos. 258, 290, 292, 197, 199, 79, 278, 291, 254, 232.

The grand jury is not expected to report before the latter part of next week.

MINNEHAHA KILLED BY BROTHER-IN-LAW

Real Fate of Bride of Hiawatha Is Revealed.

Washington.—Minnehaha, the lovely Laughing Water, was murdered by her brother-in-law. Such at least, was the fate of the bride of Hiawatha, according to new details of the Iroquois legend gathered by Dr. J. N. B. Hewitt, ethnologist of the Smithsonian institution.

Her real name is unknown, and it certainly was not Laughing Water, but that does not affect the significance of the story which Mr. Hewitt is placing, step by step, on a historical basis. He is working with details furnished nearly forty years ago by a blind Iroquois ritual leader who was one of the last to have kept uncontaminated the story of his people.

According to this version, which checks in details sufficiently to indicate considerable historical validity, Hiawatha was the child of a Mohawk woman who became the second wife of an Onondaga who had a son by a previous marriage with a woman of his own tribe.

A Ruthless Gangster.

This stepbrother of the future apostle of the Iroquois was, from all accounts, a ruthless gangster who, operating with a band of ruffians, terrorized his own tribe by the typical gangster methods of today. Anybody who opposed him in tribal councils or elsewhere was promptly "put on the spot."

Even in his youth Hiawatha, Mr. Hewitt finds, had decidedly liberal leanings which were to crystallize into a gospel of social action only after tragic and mystical experiences. He was disgusted with the gang rule of his stepbrother, Wa-ta-do-da-ho. He tried to organize a rival party, but could obtain no followers for obvious reasons.

The one man whom Wa-ta-do-da-ho did not dare to "put on the spot" was Hiawatha, owing to a curious combination of circumstances. The Iroquois child took the tribal affiliation of its mother. Hence Hiawatha was not an Onondaga but a Mohawk. If the stepbrother had brought about the murder of a Mohawk he would have brought upon himself the vengeance of that powerful tribe.

He compromised by murdering his stepsister-in-law and her children. She was an Onondaga and her children were Onondagas, and it was no concern of the Mohawks what happened to them. One of these children was a daughter already married and about to become a mother.

Started His Wanderings.

But when Hiawatha returned to his lodge to find his loved one slain, he became temporarily insane and started the strange wilderness "Pilgrim's Progress" which, had the white settlement of America been delayed for a century, might well have been one of the most significant in human history.

At this point, says Mr. Hewitt, the story of Hiawatha becomes so overloaded with legendry and supernatural happenings that it is entirely unhistorical. But at some time in his grief-crazed wanderings the future apostle came under the influence of the great Deganawida, the Christ-figure of the Iroquois epic, and the partnership resulted in the establishment of the strange politico-religious system, based on the doctrine of human brotherhood, which entered into the League of the Iroquois.

Believe Indians Traded Widely in Western U. S.

Tucson, Ariz.—Indians inhabiting western America 2,000 years ago traded throughout a territory thousands of miles in extent, A. F. Hemenway, of the University of Arizona faculty, said.

Evidences of their traffic in furs, shells, roots, and plant fibers have been found, in a nondescript lot of prehistoric strings, cords and woven objects sent the Carnegie institution's desert laboratory here by the Peabody museum of Harvard university.

They were gathered from Indian ruins in Arizona, New Mexico, California, Utah and Texas by Peabody museum workers.

The 33 ancient pieces were turned over to Hemenway for identification. Among the woven objects, apparently garments and ceremonial costumes, Hemenway found Indian hemp, milk weeds of the desert variety from California, and the broad leaf type from northern Arizona; yucca, agave or the century plant, cotton and the Mexican sore eye plant.

Men Stand Higher Than Wives in Class Rooms

Palo Alto, Calif.—Married men make better grades in college than they did before they were married.

Married women may make lower grades.

These are among the deductions of Mrs. Helen Berg, education graduate at Stanford university, who is making a study of college marriages.

The increased scholarship of men after marriage is accounted for by their greater application to their studies and a more serious attitude toward college growing out of the added responsibility of marriage.

Mrs. Berg feels that when the married coed falls a little in scholarship it may be because of the added work and worry involved in housekeeping.

In company with other American universities, there has been a definite increase in the proportion of married students enrolled at Stanford.

A Warning

Editor the Freeman:

I earn my living in Kingston, spend much of my salary in the city, but live 15 miles outside the city limits. In order to bridge the gap between home and office it is necessary that I make two daily trips over the deplorable and highly dangerous Kingston-West Hurley road. Then by the grace of topography I am able to leave the boulevard, a state and New York artery, to travel on a country road.

I am impressed by the apathetic viewpoint of Kingston merchants and other professional folk concerning the dangerous highway leading to the city from the Catskills. For one thing, I cannot understand why they do not militate against the politicians and bureaucrats who appropriate no funds for this road. Perhaps Kingston merchants feel it is their right to expect county folk to give them their business. Why, then, should they exert themselves to make the way easier for their patrons? Well, there is a new concrete road to be laid between Woodstock and Saugerties, which will open the mountain territory for the latter village. This new link in the state's highway system will mean that folk in the Phoenicia-Mt. Tremper-Shandaken areas will have smooth as silk motoring to Saugerties.

Complacency is not enough. Kingston merchants may hold the view that their stores are superior to Saugerties. But this may not be so always. Finer merchandise is ever available to demand. It will, though, mean much to the motorist that the double indemnity of gasoline levy and car depreciation will be lessened as concerns the latter item.

I speak as no outsider. I know it to be true that Kingston as a community is only too willing to wait until something happens. The shrieking and the turmoil will be loosened only when Saugerties begins to reap a heavy harvest. Since a work in Kingston and my employer's business is dependent upon his neighbors', I do not like to think of what might happen.

I should like to remind the merchants, the politicians, and our state legislative representatives that the Kingston-Oneonta road is not traveled any longer in ox-carts. There are some who have new cars. They realize now they have been foolish.

Well it's not so far from Kingston to Saugerties. It will be a pleasant jaunt, some shopping day, to drop by the little village and see how shops are, what the prices on ceries. Then the ride up the mountains will be pleasant, when the Saugerties-Mt. Tremp road is finished.

Sincerely,

A COUNTY RESIDENT.

Flexibility of the Hands

It is a generally accepted princi that the fingering of a piano or org keyboard will vary and be gover by the size and formation of th hand, and the webbing between fingers, according to a musician the Montreal Herald. Hands are all the same in size and pliability, rules which suited one kind of ha were unsuited to others. The later stretch between the thumb and th hand and between the fingers var very much, and it is not always largest hands which have the flexible action. Some large hands tightly webbed, and some small o are very flexible and in the playing arpeggios, the smaller hand will p the greater stretch more easily th the large hand.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The more one listens to actors who squawk about the terrible roles unfeeling producers foist upon them the more one is convinced that producers know at least a little more about it than actors

Latest bright example is Robert Montgomery. A few weeks ago, when he was just beginning "Petticoat Fever," Bob was in a dither. He couldn't see why they wanted to put him in a thing like that He read aloud, hopelessly, some snatches of dialog

He was not protesting violently, it is true His comments were delivered more with the voice of resignation than of anger. He was under contract, hence had to accept what was delivered to him

Fans Like It

The other night they previewed this comedy People laughed often, and in the right places, and afterwards many of them said they liked Montgomery better than in anything he had done in a long time. They liked Myrna Loy, too, and Reginald Owen, and seemed to have a good time, even if "Petticoat Fever" made no pretentions to high art.

All of which recalled another role th. Robert Montgomery scorned and rejected. It was played finally by Clark Gable, under protest, opposite an actress named Claudette Colbert, who didn't like her role either. The picture was a little thing called "It Happened One Night"

Ann Harding probably will never live down her objections to "Holiday," which turned into her first big hit. (Sh made up for it, however, in holding out as long as possible against "Prestige, which was not so warm)

Tests In The Making

A number of interesting "test cases" in this matter of who-knows-best are in the making now. George Raft walked from "The Princess Comes Across" and Fred MacMurray stepped in Marlene Dietrich would have no more to do with "I Loved A Soldier" and Margaret Sullavan was borrowed to take her place Pat O'Brien vetoed a role in "Stage-Struck" the new Dick Powell Joan Blondell teamer and Warren William was assigned to it.

When these pictures come out, the fans can judge for themselves.

Carole Lombard opposite William Powell in "My Man Godfrey" will be another film meeting of divorced stars, but not the first this year. Henry Fonda and Margaret Sullavan already have done a film together.

February this year was the coldest February since 1914, with 1934 excepted, according to the weather bureau maintained at Cornell by the United States Department of Agriculture.

PAYMENTS MADE ON GOV. CLINTON BONDS

Payment is now being made at the auditor's office in the Governor Clinton Hotel of coupon interest on bonds of the Kingston Community Hotel Corporation which were issued at the time of the erection of the new addition to the hotel.

The directors recently sent out a communication stating the financial condition of the corporation and suggesting that the holders of bonds consent to cancellation of interest coupons on which a suspension of interest had been made during the past two years and that the remaining coupons when due at an interest rate of 5 per cent per year. To this request the bondholders responded very generously, in fact practically all of the bondholders gave consent.

Now arrangements have been completed for the cancellation of the old coupons and the payment of the 5 per cent interest due February 1, 1936. Payment will be made on this coupon on presenting the bond at the auditor's office, having the remaining coupons stamped and signing the required receipt. Payment is made at the Hotel and not at the bank as first suggested. Thus far but a few of the bondholders have presented their coupons for payment or their bonds for stamping. When collecting interest the bond must be presented for stamping and removal of the surrendered coupons.

The automobile threat is that the coming generation won't have a leg to stand on.

Scores Driven Before High Waters in South, Genesee Flood Holds

(By The Associated Press)

Rising rivers drove scores of families from their homes in the lower Ohio valley and the south today.

Approximately 100 persons evacuated their dwellings in Pope county, Illinois, as the overburdened Ohio continued to swell. Observers warned a 46-foot crest next week would cover the Golconda (Ill.) water front to a five-foot depth.

Thousands of acres along the Tennessee river were flooded. Many residents of the menaced area took to the hills The highest levels in four years were in prospect. The Cumberland river also expanded to threatening proportions.

The upper Mississippi slowly swelled A huge ice field swept away a 396-foot pontoon bridge utilized by a railroad at Reads Landing, Minn.

The Genesee routed families near Rochester, N Y. The Ohio was above flood stage from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill, but no new rampage was indicated.

Evansville, Ind, looked for a stage of 45 5 feet Monday, but the rise had virtually halted above Cincinnati.

Further upstream, rehabilitation work was pushed.

Meanwhile, the house banking committee approved a measure to authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend up to $25,000,000 to persons and corporations in the stricken areas

River Steamers to Resume Operations

The Hudson River Navigation Company, which has taken over the former Hudson River Steamboat Company, plans to resume operations on the Hudson river for the season on Wednesday, April 1, when the steamer B. B. O'Dell will leave New York city for upriver points There has been no steamer traffic on the Hudson since the latter part of December when the river became icelocked. Thereafter there will be daily service by this line.

The work of raising the sunken Cornell line tug Rob was completed yesterday afternoon by the big wrecker of the Merritt, Chapman Company, and towed to the Hiltebrant shipyard at South Rondout where the Rob was placed on drydock. The tug has a hole about six feet long and two feet wide stove in the her hull where she was struck by a runaway barge during the flood in the Rondout creek.

Father Divine Sells His High Falls Farm

Father Divine was in Kingston this morning and filed a deed in the county clerk's office transferring his High Falls farm to Ada and Yolanda Tenedini of High Falls. The deed given the consideration paid as $1, and there is a stamp tax of $4 attached to the deed.

This farm is the Cherry Hill Farm on the Mossy Brook road in High Falls, and was bought by Father Divine at a foreclosure sale. It is understood that at the time Father Divine took title to the property that the Tenedinis had a contract to purchase with the original owners of the farm.

The deed is from Esther Grace and Sarah Cooper of 20 West 115th street, New York city (two of Father Divine's followers) to Ada and Yolanda Tenedini.

Clothing Specialist

Miss Margaret Morehouse, well-known and popular clothing specialist from the State College of Home Economics, at Ithaca, will be in the county three days next week. On Tuesday, March 31, Miss Morehouse will be in Modena where the meeting will be held at Hasbrouck Memorial Hall at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, April 1, she will be in Kingston. The place of meeting is the Home Bureau office, 280 Wall street, and the time is 1:30 p. m. Thursday Miss Morehouse has a meeting in Napanoch. The topic of Miss Morehouse's talk will be "Spring Style Trends". As she has had considerable experience in this phase of the work she is well qualified to give this lecture. These meetings are open to anyone interested.

In Jail.

Ralph Buley, 27, of Ashokan is in the Ulster county jail for 30 days, having been sentenced to serve the sentence or pay $30 fine, Friday, by Justice of the Peace Roland Shultis of Woodstock for violation of Section 925 of the Penal Law. Buley was arrested as the result of non-payment of rent and destruction to property. Deputy Sheriff Rudolph DeSilva took him into custody.

Intense Aerial Activity

Rome, March 28 (AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander of the Italian forces on the northern Ethiopian front, reported today. "On the western sector of the northern front troops are completing occupation of the Uolcait region. Yesterday they entered the formidable Birgutan position which, with Cafta already in our possession, assures domination of the whole region "There is intense aerial activity on both fronts."

Osborne Praises Corps.

Albany, N Y, March 26 (AP)—Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne praised the Civilian Conservation Corps today for relief work during the floods last week. In a letter to the corps, the commissioner said, "your fine work in rescuing marooned families, doing salvage and cleanup work saving household and personal belongings, keeping dams intact and rebuilding highways is a source of justifiable pride."

TINIEST OF STARS IS NEAREST EARTH

Newly Discovered Body Only a Third of Mile Across.

Cambridge, Mass.—The smallest heavenly body known to astronomers, only one-third of a mile across, has been photographed by the Harvard college observatory, according to an announcement by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory.

The body, only 1-25,000th as large as the earth, was discovered February 12 by a European astronomer.

The tiny body when first observed was within two or three million miles of the earth, which, with the exception of one or two comets, is closer than any other such object has ever come. Harvard astronomers estimate its weight to be 300,000,000 tons, or about that of a small mountain.

The Harvard photographs were taken by Dr. F. L. Whipple and Dr. L. E. Cunningham at the Oakridge station in the town of Harvard. The object was located and identified through calculations by Doctor Cunningham, based on observations by the discovery, Dr. E. Delporte of the Royal observatory, Brussels, Belgium.

Astronomers are not sure yet whether the object is a comet or an asteroid, but whatever it is, it is speedily moving away from the earth. It is now visible only through the most powerful telescopes and is expected to be well beyond the range of science's instruments soon.

Through a study of the object, astronomers believe they may be able to discover many hitherto unknown characteristics of such small particles. Also, because it is so small, the object is expected to be affected greatly by the gravitational forces of the planets Venus and Mercury, which it is expected to pass very closely, thus permitting the most accurate estimates ever made of the masses of these planets.

Scientists also hope to determine the body's orbit so that they can predict if and when it will return. From preliminary calculations, Doctor Cunningham believes the object has an orbit on the same plane as that of the earth.

Its closest approach to the sun is about half the distance from the earth to the sun, while its greatest distance, his figures show, is equal to about one and one-half times the earth-to-sun distance.

Austria Shows Lowest Birth Rate in World

Vienna, Austria.—Austria has the lowest birth rate in the world, and Vienna has the lowest birth rate in Austria.

In 1934 the average number of births in Austria was only 13.5 to 1,000 inhabitants, according to the figures of the department of statistics just published.

Since 1910 the birth rate in Vienna has decreased by two-thirds.

While in 1910 Vienna's birth rate was 76 births to 1,000 woman inhabitants, in 1934 this figure had sunk to 23. In the provinces the situation is not as catastrophic, but everywhere a substantial decrease occurred.

From 1910 to 1934 the number of births decreased from 127 to 58 per 1,000 female inhabitants in Lower Austria. In Styria the corresponding figures were 125 and 68, in Salzburg 130 and 69, in Vorarlberg 120 and 70, in Upper Austria 129 and 75, in the Tyrol 129 and 75, in Carinthia 146 and 83, and in the Burgenland 160 and 97.

Due to improved hygienic conditions and to better medical treatment the death rate also has decreased during the same period. It was 13 to 1,000 inhabitants in 1934.

The reduction in the number of deaths, however, was not as marked as the decrease in the birth rate.

The time is approaching when the deaths will outnumber the births.

Cadet Sailor Is Rated Expert British Pilot

Vancouver, B. C.—A Vancouver youth has gained the distinction of becoming the first merchant service midshipman in the British empire to enroll for aviation and receive a pilot's "A" license.

He is Cadet Capt. Walker R. N. Sturdy, who is making his first voyage on the Empress of Japan out of Vancouver for the Orient. He has signed as a cadet for three years.

Flying is a new field of endeavor for the merchant service. Cadets receive theoretical studies on board the H. M. S Conway, the training ship at Liverpool, and practical experience at Hooton aerodrome, Liverpool.

Sturdy came within 20 minutes of creating a record in training for solo flight. The requirement calls for 12 hours before taking solo, and the record for the British air ministry is five hours. The Vancouver boy made it in five hours twenty minutes.

100-Year-Old Clock Acts as Barometer

Shelbyville, Ind.—Will it be cold or warm tomorrow? Miss Minnie Molder, of this city, has a Seth Thomas clock more than one hundred years old, which in the 76 years she has had it never has failed to tell her what tomorrow's weather will be. The old clock "drags" at striking time if the weather is to warm up, and strikes deep, clear and resonantly if it is to remain cold or turn colder.

Strange Street Names

Rothenburg ob der Tauber, famous German city, where every year on Whit Monday the Meister Trunk festival is held, has street and tower names as quaint as its festivals. A few of them are Little Dumpling street, Vinegar Jug, Cheese Chamber, the Dog Tower, and the street of the Little [illegible].

About The Folks

Dr William J Cranston is leaving Sunday afternoon for New York city where he will attend the annual post-graduate week of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. His office will be closed until April 6.

Hilda Woerner, Mei Colvin and Mary Fauble of Hilda's Beauty Shop, Cedar street were among those who attended the hairdressers' show in the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, on Tuesday

NEW YORK TO HAVE FIRST "FREE PORT"

Four Piers Fenced Off as Foreign Trade Zone.

Washington.—New York city is soon to have a foreign trade zone, the first in the United States. Four piers, and a 78 acre tract surrounding them, will be fenced off from the rest of Staten Island as a special customs-free vestibule, to be known as "the free port."

"In this commercial waiting room shippers may unload their cargoes for storage, processing, re packing, or re-shipment. Then they may gather up their burdens and depart, or 'climb' the tariff fence to the United States. Whichever they plan to do, their course is temporarily simplified by freedom from customs inspection, which is so complicated that even experienced importers must depend upon the guidance of customs experts to thumb through a 700 page volume of regulations.

New York Busy Harbor.

"This small patch of shipping freedom in the land of the free is located at Stapleton, in New York City's Borough of Richmond," says the National Geographic society. "The piers are four of a score which extend into the Narrows, between Upper bay and that broad expanse of water where the Atlantic pours into Lower New York and Gravesend bays. About 1,000 feet long, with over 200,000 square feet of floor space each, these double-decked steel piers are expected to be a valuable addition to the country's busiest harbor.

"New York's 150 miles of docks handle 20 per cent of the foreign commerce of the entire United States. This represents a decline from 30 years ago, when New York handled half, but it still has about three times as much as any other single port in the country. New York is headquarters for about 100 regular oceanic steamship lines. In addition, scores of 'tramps'—vessels taking a cargo when and where it is offered, and to any port—will find their work easier and cheaper, and odd-lot cargoes will be speeded.

"Behind the piers lies Stapleton, which, though mainly residential, has a nautical flavor. The main street is named for the bay, and others are called Dock, Canal, Water, Sand, Wave, Baltic, Beach, and Prospect streets. A few miles south is the site of Oude Dorp, thought to be the earliest settlement of Europeans in this southernmost borough of New York city. It was they who named the island Staten after the statten, or states, of their native Netherlands.

"While New York has the first free port in the United States, it is not the first in the western hemisphere. In Mexico are Tijuana and Ensenada; in Cuba, Matanzas; in Venezuela, Tucacas.

"An early American ancestor of New York's free port was neighboring Perth Amboy, New Jersey, where canny Scottish settlers in colonial days encouraged their compatriots and others to dock for a bit of bargaining before running the customs gantlet.

Originated in Antwerp.

"The principle of the free port, however, is far older than that. It probably began when Antwerp, in the Fifteenth century, snatched trade supremacy from nearby Bruges by dispensing with almost all importing restrictions. Even a century ago Europe's tariff dilemma was evident from the fact that eight customs stations were encountered in the 150 miles between Milan and Florence, Italy. In contrast to such conditions, Italy now has several free ports, among them Genoa, Leghorn, Venice, and Naples.

"Free ports in Fiume and Trieste are busy with trans-shipments for portless central European nations, while Grecian Thessalonike, with separate zones for Greece and Yugoslavia, and Rumania's Danubian port of Sulina also serve the interior. Spain's free ports are Almeria, Barcelona, Bilboa, Cadiz, Santander, and Vigo.

"Gdynia, on the Baltic sea, recently established a foreign trade zone as Poland's rival to the Free City of Danzig, which for a thousand years has been a port and forty years a free one. Denmark's Copenhagen bids for trade against Sweden's commercial triplets, Goteborg, Malmo and Stockholm.

"Germany has the prize collection of free ports, as far as volume of business goes. To Stettin, Cuxhaven, Emden, Flensburg are added Bremen and its companion Bremerhaven. Most prominent of all, however, and accepted the world over as the typical example of a free port, is Hamburg. It's an ill trade wind that blows no cargo to this inland, sheltered harbor, 65 miles up the Elbe from the North sea. Here crews of all nationalities unload cargo, store it, re-pack it, even subject it to some manufacturing processes, re load it, and start off elsewhere with it, all without paying a cent of customs duties, except on what is sent actually into Germany."

Use for Palm Sunday Leaves

In Spain, the palms of Palm Sunday have not fulfilled their mission at the end of holy day services. Many Spanish families subsequently tie the leaves to balconies or over door lintels to ward off lightning. Elche supplies the leaves for nearly all Spain, the tops of its trees being bound to bleach the leaves to the desired whiteness.

HIGHLAND

Highland, March 28—The trustees of the local school, Mrs. J. D. Rose, president, Philip T. Schantz, William H. Maynard, A. W. Lent and C. I. Richards attended the 4-H Club banquet held in the parlors of the Methodist Church in New Paltz Friday evening. The business sessions were held in the high school with Dr. Getman of Albany as chief speaker. Milo F. Winchester of the Agriculture Department also attended.

Chapter A., P. E. O., Sisterhood, will meet Thursday, April 2, at the Stone house with Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck and Miss Laura Harcourt as hostesses. The program subject, "Drama," is in charge of Mrs. Philip Wilklow.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Rhodes and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rhodes were in Walden Thursday to attend the funeral services for the late Mr. DeKay, father of Mrs. Livingston Rhodes

The Auxiliary Club will meet in the Methodist Church parlor on the afternoon of April 3. The entertaining hostesses are Mrs. Josiah Schoonmaker, Mrs. Frank Palmer, Mrs. Emily Brundage and Mrs. Robert Cummings.

Word was received early Friday morning of the death of Frank Decker at his home in Catskill. He was a brother of Reuben H. Decker of this place and Mr. Decker had been in Catskill the day before to see his brother, who was unconscious then. Frank Decker was in his 92nd year.

Mrs. Martin Upright of Maybrook spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Clifton B. Carpenter.

The trustees of the Presbyterian Church held a meeting Thursday evening and arranged their activities for the coming month.

Miss Ann Taylor of the high school faculty spent the week-end at her home in New Jersey and was accompanied by Mrs. Parker Decker and Mrs. Ernest Tamney.

Mrs. Clarence Tompkins will entertain the Queen Esther Club on Wednesday evening next and the entertainment is being arranged by Mrs. George Hildebrand.

The negative team of the debates being carried on went to Monticello on Thursday and lost there 3-0. The teams debated with New Paltz Friday afternoon in the local school.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist congregation held Wednesday evening three new stewards were elected to fill vacancies caused by deaths. They were Luther Filkins; Elmer D. Fisher, F. H. Wilsey. Reports were given by the pastor, the Rev. Herbert Killinder, of the standing of the church; Lorin E. Osterhoudt for the Sunday school; Mrs. R. H. Decker for the Auxiliary Club; Mrs. Joel Smedes for the Missionary Society. The congregation extended an invitation for the return of the pastor another year. Financial secretary, Herbert Scholefield, gave a report of the incomes for the year and the treasurer, John F. Wadlin, reported the disbursements. Mr. Killinder called attention to the loss by death of five valued members in the year; Simeon Scott, Andries DuBois, David H Merritt, John K. Fisher and Theron DuBois. Mr. Killinder has conducted 26 funerals in the last year and 81 in the four years of his pastorate, and last year there were 10 of the membership of his church. While the church has some debt the outlook for the coming year was encouraging.

"The Significance of Sacrifice" is the sermon subject of the Rev. D. S. Haynes at 10:45 Sunday morning in the Presbyterian Church. The Pioneer club meets at 4 o'clock and the Young People's Club at 6, when Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Kevan of New Paltz will tell of the work and the schools begun by Miss Martha Berry in the south. Sunday school meets at 9:30 a. m.

The 8th and 9th episodes in the life of Christ will be pictured Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Methodist Church. These show Jesus coming to Jerusalem. This series ends with Palm Sunday. The worship service is held at 10:45 a. m., with sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Herbert Killinder. Sunday school sessions are held at 9:45 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Elting leave Sunday for their camp at Clearyville where they will spend some time. They have lately returned from spending the winter at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Ancient Cities in China Compare With Great Wall

The city of Peiping has a fascinating history beginning about 2,000 years before Christ. Peking, officially called Peiping, has seen the reign of over forty Mongol, Ming and Manchu rulers. In reality the city comprises four different sections, each surrounded by imposing fortified walls.

The heart of Peiping is the "Forbidden City" with its yellow tile roofs, marble courtyards and pink walls. Prior to 1912 this was the abode of the imperial family and their retinue. Surrounding this is the "Imperial City" in which are to be found the lakes called "seas" and the winter palace. Encircling this latter city is the "Tartar City" in which are located the Lama temple, Hall of Classics, Bell and Drum towers, legation quarters, and the observatory which is the oldest in the world. Passing through the south gate of the "Tartar City" one enters the Chinese city where is situated the Temple of Heaven and the Temple of Agriculture.

Forty-five miles north of Peiping is the Great Wall which ranks with the Pyramids of Egypt as one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. For 2,000 miles this great stone structure marks the border of Inner China. Not far away are the 13 Ming tombs with their Holy Way paved in marble and lined by huge mythological animals and figures. To the west lies the celebrated summer palace built by the late empress dowager, with its large lake, dragon island, rockeries and famous Marble Boat.

Daylight-saving would be fine if the little kids didn't insist on staying up to get some good out of it.

PEGGY WATTLES WINS AUGUSTA GOLF TITLE

Augusta, Ga., March 28 (AP)—Buffalo's Peggy Wattles held the Augusta women's invitational golf title today after overcoming a good field and the hazards of the difficult hill course of the Augusta Country Club.

Miss Wattles took the championship by defeating Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., two and one.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

St Petersburg—The plague of injuries is striking at Joe DiMaggio early in his big league career Doc Painter, the Yankee trainer, says Joe's spike wound is such that he will not be able to play until Monday at the earliest. Red Ruffing went through his first official workout on Huggins Field yesterday.

Clearwater — Van Mungo, the number one man of the Brooklyn Dodgers mound staff, says he wants to pitch more than 50 games this season. Casey Stengel says, "That, gentlemen, is a great deal of work."

New Orleans—Sam Leslie, Terry's understudy at first base, was near his old home town Pascagoula when the Giants played the Atlanta Crackers at Gulfport, Miss., yesterday. A delegation from the home town presented him a wrist watch whereupon Sambo stepped to the plate and fouled out.

New Orleans—Although the Indians have defeated the Giants three times so far this year, they aren't taking Terry's men too lightly. Manager Steve O'Neill has selected Oral Hildebrand and Al Milnar to pitch today in the first of two week-end games that precede the annual spring barnstorming trip

Ned Reigh, 'Another Exterminator,' Is Kilmer Hope in Kentucky Derby

By FRANK H. FULLER

Remlik Hall, Va. (AP)—Thundering hoofs beat a fast tattoo on a heavy track as New Reigh, Kentucky Derby contender, flashed past two fillies after a breeze around the track at this Kilmer training ground.

"Well?" inquired Jack White, veteran trainer, as he leaned back on his cane, a smile beginning to play around the corners of his mouth while he endeavored to look serious.

"You are going up to talk to Mr. Kilmer," he said. "I think I had better leave the comment to him. I'll tell you that the horse hasn't missed a day this winter and he is far advanced."

Owner Is Enthusiastic

White looked on approvingly as Ned Reigh, dark brown son of Neddie out of Reigh Un, came off the track and headed for the big indoor track, where he is exercised in cold weather, to be led around until cooled off.

Later, in the residence, William Sharpe Kilmer, noted turfman and breeder of great thoroughbreds, leaned back in an easy chair in a room adorned with the pictures of such noted horses as "Sun Briar," "Sun Beau" and his recent importation, "Gino," and said:

"Ned Reigh is more like Exterminator than any horse I've ever owned He is big, good on a fast track or in the mud, and he can go the distance I think he is a good horse. Like Exterminator he doesn't need a rider, but will take advantage of any opening"

If Ned Reigh could comment he probably would add to the spirit of confidence here. He runs with a smooth, seemingly effortless action that carries him over the ground with an amazing speed. Experienced observers in this horse-breeding state agree he will be hard to beat in the Derby. In fact, some say he will be THE horse to beat.

Ned Reigh with Jockey Silvio Coucci up

Entered In Preakness

E. E. Coussell, writing in the Bloodstock Breeders Review, London, says Ned Reigh "is probably the best horse Mr. Kilmer has bred and owned since Sun Beau."

As a 2-year-old last season Ned Reigh won the Troy Claiming Stakes at Saratoga, the Babylon Handicap, the Junior Championship Stakes and the Walden Stakes, the last named at Bowie over a mile and a sixteenth.

White feels that he will be ready shortly to battle the best in the racing game. Before the Derby, Ned Reigh will run in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica and after the Derby he will go on to Baltimore for the Preakness.

REYNOLDSTOWN AGAIN TAKES GRAND NATIONAL

SO SAY THE MANAGERS

By JIMMY DYKES
Chicago White Sox

Pasadena, Cal. (AP)—The White Sox, provided we have just a fair amount of luck, will be a strong contender for a place in the first division of the American League this year.

We finished fifth in 1935, and I believe we have a better ball club this season. The team is young, generally speaking, but the boys received good seasoning in the last campaign. They're hustling and the spirit of the entire outfit is fine.

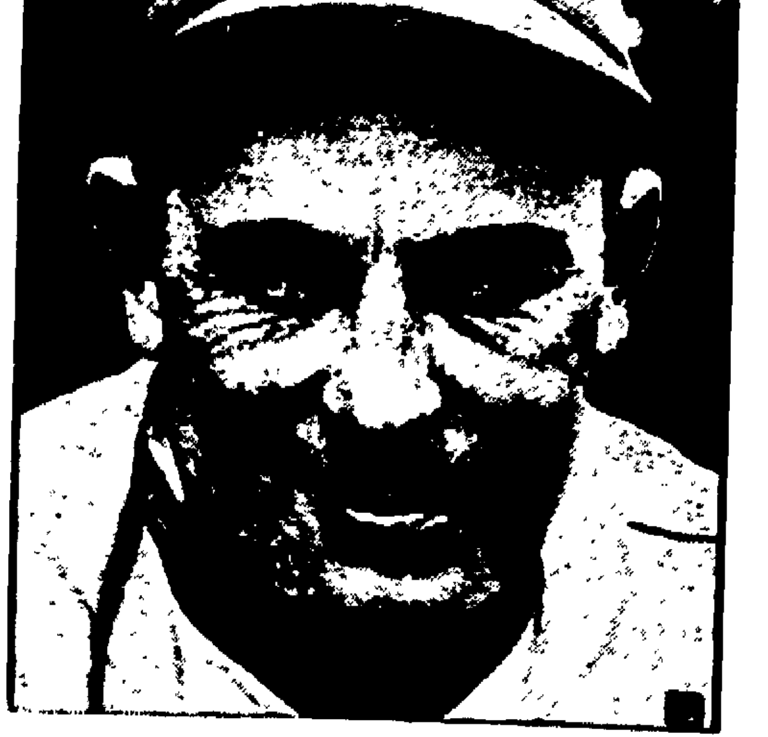
We have enough veterans to steady the younger men—experienced men like Luke Sewell, one of the best catchers in the game, Muddy Ruel, another great backstop, and Frank Grube, who is in the best shape of his career. Teddy Lyons can show the youngsters a world of stuff on the mound, and of course, I've been through a couple of years of baseball myself.

Ready to Slip In

It would be foolish to say we're going to win the pennant. Naturally we are going to play to win, and hope to win, but there are some tough ball clubs in the top bracket Boston, Detroit, New York and Cleveland, for instance. They're going to be hard to stop But if they start fighting among themselves, some other club may slip into the first division. We might be that club.

I look for our pitching to be excellent. Lyons may have another great season. A lot of people thought the old boy was through last year, but he won 15 games for us, and I believe he still has a lot of good pitching in that right arm of his.

All the other pitchers have been working hard this spring. Johnny Whitehead, the big Texan who came to the majors last year and won his first eight games, is in better shape than when the season ended last year. Vernon Kennedy, Monty Stratton, Ray Phelps, Ira Hutchinson, "Red" Evans, who won 24 games for Oklahoma City last year, Leslie Tietje and Italo Chelini, the only left-hander in the outfit—any one or all of these may have a great season.



JIMMY DYKES

(This is the last of a series of eight articles written for The Associated Press by major league managers)

Dykes Back to Third

Mike Kreevich looks like the best of the young outfielders, but George Stumpf, up from Kansas City, Merv McCulloch and Marshall Mauldin may come through. Right now center field is a question mark, but we'll have Rip Radcliff in left and Kreevich in right. If Zeke Bonura shows up I'll move Mule Haas from first base into right, Kreevich in center and have Radcliff in left.

In the infield Luke Appling will be at short, Tony Piet, who has been hitting well this spring, and Jackie Hayes will fight it out for second, and I'll be back at third.

The Sox may not have any outstanding stars, but I believe we're well balanced and will have a good year.

The Best "Leppers" Raised on the Old So

Aintree, England, March 28 —The sons of Erin and the bookmakers still celebrated the running of the Grand National day, and perhaps Pete Bostwick, the wiry little American amateur rider, did a little celebrating on his own part even though he hadn't won the race.

The triumph of Reynoldstown steady Irish-bred jumper owned by Major Noel Furlong, for the second straight year, backed up the contention of every good Irishman that the best "leppers" are raised on the old sod.

For the bookies, who stood to lose millions if Golden Miller or Avenger the heavily backed favorites, had won, the triumph of a 10 to 1 third choice was something of an event but their joy was tinged with regret. Only an odd accident prevented a victory by Davy Jones, an outsider so lightly backed that nearly every bet would have been clear profit to the layers of odds.

Davy Jones, owned and ridden by Anthony Mildmay, was leading by a comfortable margin after clearing the last jump, but a rein broke and the horse swerved sharply off the course while his owner sat helpless, unable to direct the mount. Reynoldstown, running a steady second, jogged across the finish line some 20 lengths ahead of Sir David Llewellyn's Ego with James V. Rank's Bachelor Prince third.

Bostwick's reason to celebrate was that, astride his own horse, Castle Irwell, he finished the race after being unseated on two previous efforts, and took seventh place, best of the American group. That alone was considered quite a triumph as only ten of the starting field of 35 were there at the finish.

Mrs. Violet Mundy's Avenger, backed into 3 to 1 favoritism by post time, fell after the first jump the second time around and had to be destroyed. The fickle Golden Miller, second choice at 7 to 1, fell the first time over the same jump. The Miller, owned by Dorothy Paget, regained his feet and Evan Williams remounted only to have the horse refuse the same jump where he unseated Gerry Wilson last year.

COLLEGIATE A. A. SWIMMERS CONTEST AT NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Conn., March 28 (AP)—Fresh assaults were launched today on swimming records at the National Collegiate A. A. final day's program got under way. The chief targets were the 100-yard and 440-yard free-style events.

John Macionis, Yale sophomore, and Jim Gilhula of Southern California, held the spotlight in the former race, while Jack Medica of Washington, a double N. C. A. A. winner, and Gilhula were expected to battle it out in the 440, with Medica defending the title.

Medica successfully defended his 1000-meter and 220-yard free-style titles to head the parade of six champions crowned yesterday.

"Words are inadequate to describe the floods," says an observer. How about Browning's "water plurality"?

600 Attend Meeting Of Fish, Game Group

A public meeting of the members and friends of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association was held in the Municipal Auditorium last evening. There were about 600 in attendance, including a large number of women and school children. Nelson Snyder, president of the association, had extended an invitation to the public to come and hear Deputy Commissioner John T. Gibbs of the State Conservation Department, and to witness the several reels of motion pictures, but the crowd which turned out was far in excess of all expectations.

Commissioner Gibbs stopped off in Kingston enroute to New York to address the local sportsmen and their friends and in his address he spoke of many things of interest to sportsmen. He was presented to the audience by Charles Finch, secretary of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County.

Among the matters discussed were the various new laws which have been enacted by the legislature this year and also some of the proposed legislation which is still pending. He referred to the matter of increased license fees in order to provide the department with additional funds to further the work of restocking the fields and streams. Because of the larger number of school boys and girls present, he spent some time talking to the younger members of the audience and referred to the assistance which could be given in protecting the forests from disastrous forest fires. Another matter which Mr. Gibbs spoke of was the matter of winter feeding of game and he complimented Ulster county on the matter in which this had been attended to during the past severe winter when individuals as well as members of the various sportsmen's associations distributed feed for the wild life of the county.

The attendance at the meeting he said showed the interest which Ulster county folks had in sportsmen's activities and he complimented the local association on the wonderful turnout.

At the conclusion of his talk he gave the opportunity to ask questions.

Mr. Gibbs was thanked by President Snyder for his talk and the consideration given the local association by his presence at the meeting.

An outline of the activities of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association was given by Mr. Snyder and he told the audience of the various projects which would be carried out this year. He pointed out the vast amount of work which had been accomplished by the associations in the county toward the restocking of field and streams.

William Mills, secretary-treasurer, of the association, was introduced and asked any person present who desired to aid in the work to join the association.

At the conclusion of the speaking portion of the program, several reels of pictures were shown by Henry Millonig, Jr., showing various types of wild life in the country.

During the evening the WPA orchestra gave a musical program.

Tung Oil Extracted From Seeds Produced by Trees

Tung oil is extracted from the seeds of the tung tree, a fast growing ornamental tree with large, dark green leaves and bearing beautiful pink and white flowers in springtime, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The mature trees are usually about 30 or more feet high, with a wide limb spread. The fruits are about the size of a russet apple.

Each fruit bears from 6 to 30 seeds. They ripen in October. The tung tree has long been grown in oriental countries, and was first introduced into America about 30 years ago.

The Chinese have used tung oil for centuries as a waterproof covering for wood, masonry, and other materials which they wished to protect from the weather. Chinese junks or boats are oiled regularly with it. Many other uses are found for this product by the Chinese. In America tung oil is employed chiefly in the paint and varnish industry.

The Oyster's Protection

The oyster's one protection against its enemies is its hard shell and the ability to keep the halves firmly closed by the adductor muscle. Crabs, however, can break it open. Starfish may either pull the shell apart, or by means of a convenient arrangement, when the oyster is too big and strong for this operation, and equally too big to swallow, they may evert the stomach and engulf the unfortunate oyster, until at last, compelled to open its shells for fresh supplies of oxygen, it is attacked, weakened, and finally destroyed by the digestive juices.

Beauty of Person and Soul

A beautiful person is the natural form of a beautiful soul. The mind builds its own house. The soul takes precedence of the body, and shapes the body to its own likeness. A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. A cold, selfish heart shrivels and distorts the best looks. A groveling spirit takes all the dignity out of the figure and all the character out of the countenance. A cherished hatred transforms the most beautiful lineaments into an image of ugliness.

Much Interest in Softball As 18 Teams Sign Up

Diers Will Manage For Coming Season

With Old Man Winter tucked away for another year, and the baseball clubs starting to organize, the Diers A. S., who campaigned so successfully against some of Ulster county's best semi-pro teams last year, will dust off the welcome mat for Miss Spring next Tuesday, when they will hold a meeting for the purpose of organizing for the coming ball season.

The Diers this year expect to have a number of well known local players on their roster who are expected to strengthen the old nine greatly.

All those players who have signified their intention of playing with the team and also any players who would like to sign up are please asked to be sure to meet at 9 Wynkoop Place on Tuesday, March 31, at 8 o'clock, so they can go ahead with their plans and be ready when the signal for play ball is given.

WHITE DUCKS WIN FROM MILTON HOLY NAME FIVE

The White Ducks defeated the Milton Holy Name team at the church hall, Milton, Friday night, by a score of 41 to 30. Cannon and Prendergast each score five fields for the winners. Libanati of the Milton team was high scorer for the evening, making 13 points.

The White Ducks will close their basketball season Wednesday night, April 1, with two games, the preliminary being between two girls' teams. Dancing will follow the game.

Eighteen teams were represented at the meeting held at the Municipal Auditorium Friday night, called by H. L. Winters, president of the Kingston A. A. A., to make arrangements for the formation of a soft ball league.

Rules and regulations to govern the league for the coming season were discussed, the rules governing the league last year being taken as a basis, but numerous changes being made to insure a more efficient organization.

The league will be divided into two circuits, one to be known as the Industrial League, the other as the Open League. The teams represented at the meeting Friday night were divided up as follows:

INDUSTRIAL—Central Hudson, Katz Metal Works, Montgomery Ward, P. B. Matthews Co., Board of Public Works, A. D. Rose, T. E. R. A. No. 519, Fuller Shirt Co., Chevrolet Motors.

OPEN—Catskill Apple Knockers, Rondout Recreation, Studt's Social Club, Colonials, C & R Social Club, Chevrolet Social Club, Moose Club, Altamart Social Club, Cordts Hose.

Complete line-up of teams an entry fee of 25c per man and a $5 deposit must be made by April 20, as present plans are to start the schedule with games on Monday, May 4. Further information may be secured from President Winters or from the secretary of the Kingston A. A. A.

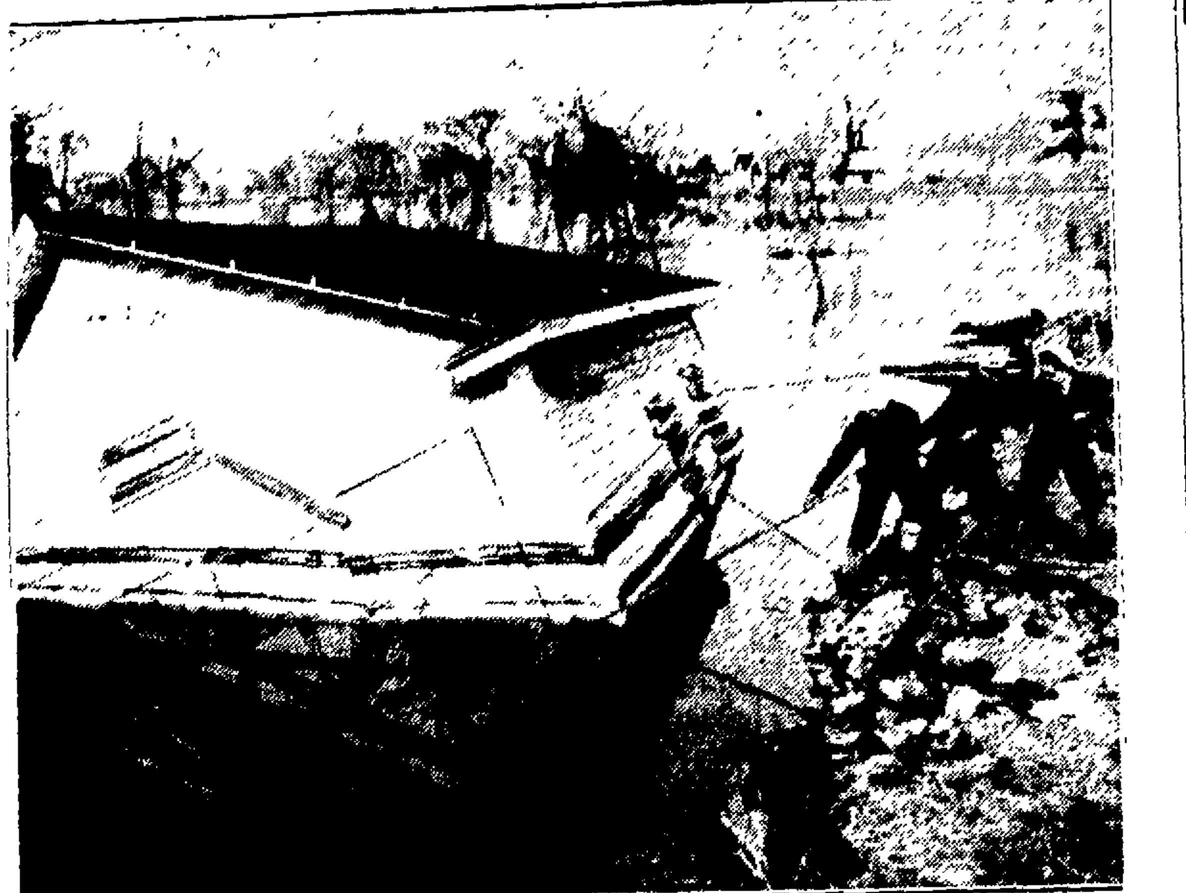
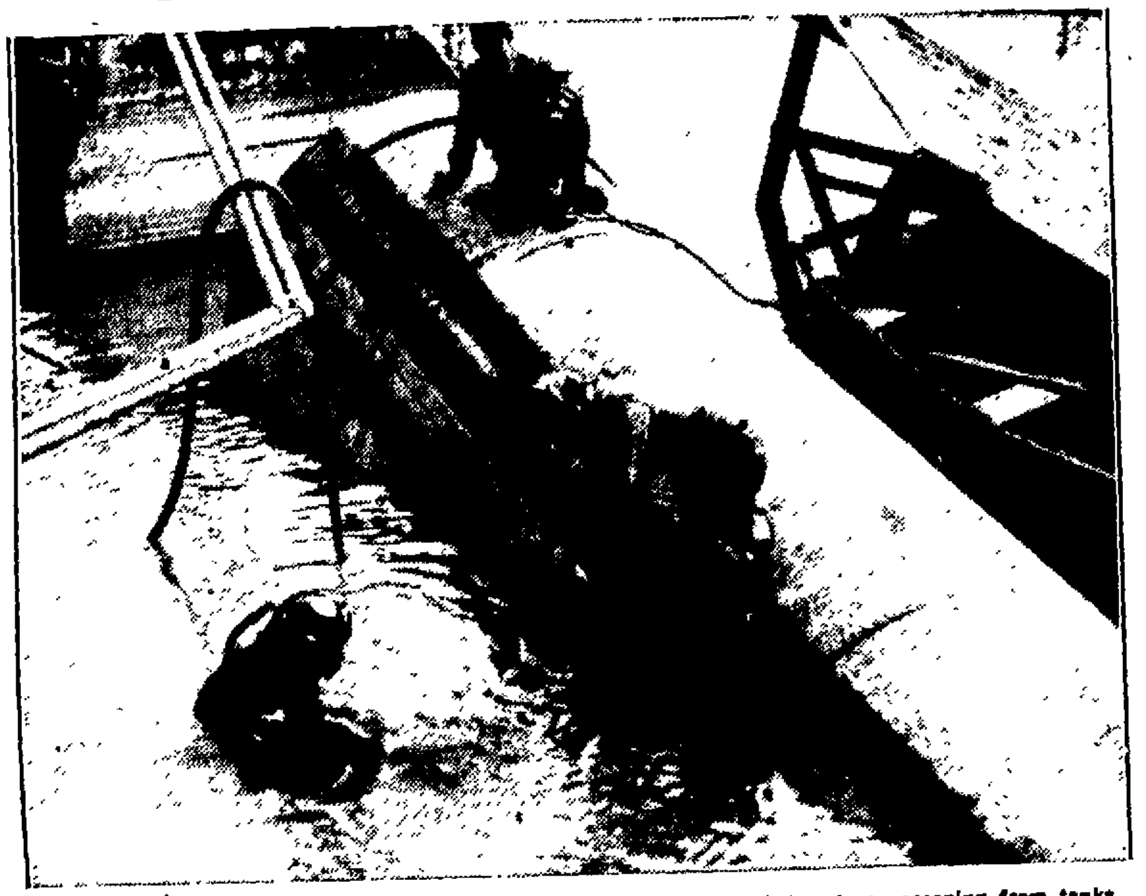
COAST GUARD AID IN SALVAGE WORK



Coast guardsmen assigned to Hartford, Conn., for the emergency following the floods are shown lashing a floating building to shore as they went about saving what they could from destruction. Many similar "rescues" were effected. (Associated Press Photo.)

GAS MENACE ADDS TO FLOOD DANGER



Stricken Hartford, Conn., faced a new danger as flood waters receded and gas escaping from tanks damaged by the inundation seeped through the city. Here a diver is going down to repair one of the many leaks. "No Smoking" signs were posted on many streets. (Associated Press Photo)

PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "The Country Doctor". Not only does this 20th Century-Fox picture star the famous Dionne quintuplets but it is also one of the bright new plays of the year, a pulsing, vibrant drama that would have been first rate entertainment without the addition of the five baby sisters. They help immensely however, and are the main attraction of the show but the story of the old doctor whose life and practice is tied up with the back woods people of the north country is screen realism at its best that will raise the emotions of any audience into the laughter of well played comedy and into the despair of understandable tragedy. Starring the five Dionnes, the cast also features Jean Hersholt, Slim Sommerville, June Lang, Michael Whalen, and Dorothy Peterson. Here is a picture treat of timely interest to young and old alike, a four star attraction that offers everything a well produced motion picture should offer.

Kingston: "The Music Goes Round". Harry Richman, the sleek haired Broadway crooner and radio star, returns to the films after several year's absence in this story that was written around a song hit that swept the nation a month or so ago. It relates what happened to a big time musical comedy star who goes into the deep south on a trip and becomes interested in an old fashioned show boat troupe. Seeing possibilities of giving New York city a large laugh from the amateur antics of the show boat cast, the star hires them to be put in his next show. There is a girl, of course, in the troupe who falls for the great Broadway singer. When he gets the troupe to New York and into the show, they are the most laughed at bunch ever seen on a Broadway stage. The trusting girl sees that the man she loves hired her troupe just for the sake of ridicule, which was a pretty lousy trick even if it did happen in the movies. But all turns out right in the end with the great Broadway star explaining he didn't do it on purpose. The show is lavish in setting, music and dancing and offers Rochelle Hudson, Walter Connolly, Michael Bartlett, Lionel Stander, Douglass Dumbrille and Henry Mollison. A Columbia picture directed by Victor Schertzinger.

Orpheum: "Steamboat Round the Bend." The late Will Rogers, fortified by Irving S Cobb and Ann Shirley, has a gay time of it in this story of the old south and especially of the steam boat captains who traversed the Mississippi. Some of the funniest situations one could seek will be found in this homespun play along with a fair quantity of romance and action. Mr. Rogers is unusually good in his role of steamboat captain and a fine supporting cast lends able assistance.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Bad Boy." Vina Delmar had such remarkable success with a novel called "Bad Girl" that she tried it out all over again with the opposite sex. So now we have "Bad Boy," the story of a boy who wasn't really bad but who couldn't get adjusted in life. James Dunn, Dorothy Wilson and Louise Fazenda are in the cast. Also on the bill is the last chapter of "Fighting Marines" and the first chapter of "Darkest Africa" with Clyde Beatty.

Weasel Not Always Ermine

A weasel is always a weasel but is not always an ermine—that is a matter of locality, season and weather. The term was originally applied in English to the British stoat, but now it means a weasel of any kind when in the white winter coat, or the coat itself after it has been stripped from the little animal and prepared for furriers' use and my lady's wear.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Barringer and Samantha were out for an auto ride Thursday afternoon.

"MEMORY GIRLS" TO ENTERTAIN

On April 1 Gladys Dibbell Port and Vera Van Steenbergh Sickler of Port Ewen, who are known as the "Memory Girls," are appearing on a vaudeville program which will be given in the Ashokan Church Hall at 8 p. m. Both ladies will be attired in the manner of the early 80's and Mrs. Port will render old fashioned songs, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Sickler. Both Mrs. Port and Mrs. Sickler are well known in this locality, having entertained on various programs throughout Ulster county.

Strawberry Growing.

Any good garden soil will grow strawberries for home use, and it is doubtful if any other small fruit compares with the strawberry in popularity.

Cornell has a bulletin that tells how to grow them, when and where to plant them, and how to care for them. It's wise to start this year, for it takes a little more than a year from the time of planting before the crop is harvested.

Royal Arcanum Elects Officers

At a meeting held last Friday at the Eagle Hotel, the officers of the newly proposed Royal Arcanum Council were elected. They are as follows: Philip J. Kearney, regent; Paul F. Terpening, vice regent; J. H. Barley, orator; Maurice A. Baker, past regent; secretary, Dr. H. Mandell; Al Ronder, treasurer; Donald Curry, collector; Joseph Avis, chaplain; Hilston A. Tweedie, guide; A. H. Lipgar, warden; A. N. Van Gelder, sentry; David Zucker, Delmar G. Kelly and Monroe L. Bach, trustees.

The council will be known as Wiltwyck Council, No. 2216, and will be officially instituted and the officers installed on April 3 at the Masonic Lodge Hall, 280 Wall street. There will be 50 charter members and among them are men of prominence in the community. It is the intention to waive the initiation fees for the charter members.

At the institution, there will be present a number of Supreme and Grand Council officers. Dutchess Council No. 2235 of Poughkeepsie, a newly organized unit, will perform the degree work. Wiltwyck Council was organized under the direction of George Siegel, state supervisor. Maurice A. Baker is chairman of the membership committee.

"Forgotten Men" Date to Ancient British History

During the reign of Charles II, a garrison at Algiers, in North Africa, was forgotten for six years. Faithful to their charge, the soldiers might have spent the rest of their lives waiting but for a party of sailors who discovered them by accident. Of the original 15 officers, only one was alive. The soldiers were in rags and almost starving.

Even more unbelievable, observes a writer in the Washington Post, is the case of the H. M. S. Falmouth, a first-class British warship sent to Batavia in 1776, and forgotten for more than ten years by the British admiralty!

Captain Wallis, commanding the sloop Dolphin, discovered the warship when he called at Batavia and heard the boom of a big gun at sunset. Investigating, he found the Falmouth rotting in the mud offshore. There was not a patch of paint on her, and her sails and rigging were rotting on the masts. The sailors were in rags—gaunt, hungry wretches who clustered around him like scarecrows. All the officers were dead and the last surviving petty officer was a raving maniac.

The crew begged to be taken off, but Captain Wallis couldn't do it without permission from the admiralty. So despite their suffering, the men had to stay on until he returned to England and explained their plight.
